

Buying Home? Escrow Likely Loses You Cash

By PATTY BEUTLER and LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writers

If you are saddled with a home mortgage, chances are you're also stuck with an escrow account that's losing you money.

When 30,000 Lincoln home buyers make their monthly mortgage payments, part of the money is set aside in an escrow account to pay annual property taxes and insurance premiums.

Banks, savings and loan associations and other lending institutions in turn, loan out these escrow funds at interest, but pay no interest to depositor-homeowners.

House Banking and Currency Committee staff members estimate that if institutions invest their escrow funds at 4% the average family loses about $800 over the life of a 30-year mortgage.

Because they are losing out on interest, some homeowners would prefer to put the escrow money in passbook savings accounts and make their own tax and insurance payments.

Escrow Required On Some

However, federal regulations require escrow accounts on the majority of home loans, including all FHA (Federal Housing Administration), VA (Veterans Administration) and MGIC (Mortgage Guarantee Insurance Corp.) loans.

Cliff MacDonald, vice president of State Federal Savings and Loan, says that for uniformity in policy his association requires escrow accounts on all home loans, even conventional loans where borrowers have at least 20% down payment.

Since escrow accounts are mandatory, then why don't most local lending institutions at least pay interest?

Bob Michaels, secretary-treasurer of the Nebraska Real Estate Corp., defends the lenders: "It's their football, they make the rules."

MacDonald says escrow accounts have traditionally been non-interest bearing.

And Ron Matthews, vice president and assistant treasurer of Union Commercial Federal Savings and Loan, puts it more bluntly: "Paying interest on escrow funds 'hasn't been practiced by us or our competitors. We all kinda hang together on it, you might say.'"

No Escrow, No Loan

In most cases, if a homebuyer won't agree to an escrow account on the lender's terms, he doesn't get the loan.

A bill, LB 502 sponsored by Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln which would have required banks and loan companies to pay 5% interest to borrowers on their escrow funds has been "indefinitely postponed" by the Legislature's Banking, Commerce and Insurance Committee.

Most testifying at the hearing on the bill represented the powerful banking and savings and loan organizations. They claimed that after the cost of handling escrow accounts is subtracted, there is little, if any, profit.

If interest were mandatory on these accounts, they said they would not break even and would likely have to increase their mortgage interest rates to absorb the difference.

Speaking for the little guys, James Fejfar of 2734 Anderson Drive protested the way loan companies "get free monies."

"At the present time I have more (equity) in the house than they (State Federal of Beatrice) do," he said. "I have more to lose than they do if I don't pay my taxes."

Truth-In-Lending Violation?

Hidden subsidies may constitute a violation of the federal Truth in Lending Law, which requires financial institutions to state unacceptably the true rate of interest being charged. If a company says it is charging a homewoner 8% but collects an additional interest-free loan (escrow payment) every month, the effective interest rate is higher than 8%.

One investment property owner interviewed did threaten to take a big lending company to court. Rather than have it be a public case, his entire account was refunded. Now he pays his own taxes and insurance.

Escrow account policies differ from firm to firm. Some keep just enough in escrow to pay taxes twice a year, before they are past due. Others set aside enough to pay almost the entire year's taxes and insurance by Jan. 1. But they don't actually pay them until they have to.

Obviously, the method most advantageous to the borrower is the one that ties up the least money. The more he has free to invest and the longer he has it, the more interest he'll earn.

Policy Criticized, Defended

University of Nebraska-Lincoln professor Roscoe Shields feels First Federal of Lincoln, "is taking unfair advantage by holding unneeded dollars with no return to me."

First Federal Treasurer Vern Roschewski defends the company's policy of keeping about 10 1/2 months taxes in escrow by the end of the year.

Like federal income taxes, real estate taxes are paid a year in arrears. In Lancaster County, taxes paid before April 1, 1975, are actually taxes for the first half of 1974. The second half of 1974 taxes are paid by Aug. 1.

Theoretically, Roschewski said, on Dec. 31, 1974, First Federal should have had 100% of the amount needed to pay 1974 taxes due in the coming year.

First Federal collects taxes in advance, he said, because if taxes are not paid when due, they become a lien ahead of the mortgage claim. In other words, the savings and loan's right to collect the value of the property would come behind the right of the county to collect the taxes.

It seems lending institutions are protecting their investments at the borrowers' expense.

Shields figures that since First Federal doesn't actually pay county real estate taxes until the end of March, it doesn't need that money until the end of March. He doesn't appreciate First Federal's holding at least $300 — and at times as much as $750 — of his money without paying him a cent of interest.

At least two companies who do some residential lending pay interest on funds set aside for taxes and insurance.

Citizens State Bank President Chick Knight said his firm doesn't "demand" escrow accounts as such, but "strongly suggests" customers take out interest-bearing savings accounts in order to build up enough reserve to pay taxes when due.

"It's a lot less pain if you get paid for it," he said. "We thought it was the fair thing to do," said S. E. Cople, president of Commonwealth Co., which has been paying interest on escrow funds at the same rate as the loan for more than a year now.

VC Shells Hit Fuel Depot

U.S. Builds Up Forces Offshore

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Viet Cong gunners fired 60 mortar and recoilless rifle shells into the vicinity of the Nha Be fuel depot six miles southeast of Saigon before dawn Monday, the South Vietnamese military command reported.

A spokesman said six persons were wounded and two pipelines were slightly damaged.

Nha Be, the biggest fuel depot in South Vietnam, has been shelled periodically for the past two years, but this was the first time it had been hit during the current five-week-old Communist offensive.

The spokesman said the Viet Cong firing sites were located in hamlets to the southeast of Saigon. They said air and artillery strikes were ordered against them, and government forces also launched a ground search.

Informed sources said U.S. Marines are prepared to land in Saigon to evacuate Americans and some Vietnamese if major fighting or chaos breaks out.

The development came as the United States continued building up its 7th Fleet ships and forces off Vietnam, with at least one aircraft carrier, three destroyers, a half-dozen other amphibious ships and elements of a Marine division standing by.

Three other aircraft carriers are within the zone, including the nuclear-powered Enterprise.

In Washington, a Defense Department spokesman said, "there is absolutely no foundation" to stories "which suggest that the evacuation of Americans from Vietnam is imminent."

The spokesman added: "As we have said before, there are four aircraft carriers in the Western Pacific. They are still there. There are no aircraft carriers in Vietnam waters."

South Vietnam claims a three-mile territorial limit. During the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam carriers often launched warplanes from about 100 miles off the coast.

U.S. Embassy spokesmen would not comment on the 7th Fleet buildup, but news releases from the embassy on refugee evacuation disclosed that the commander of the fleet's amphibious force, Rear Adm. Donald B. Whitmore, was on station near Saigon with his flagship, the USS Blue Ridge.

There are nearly 6,000 Americans still in Vietnam, although many have begun leaving by commercial means.

Other sources disclosed the presence of two more destroyers, the carrier Hancock, and supply ships off the coast of Vietnam.

They said President Ford had ordered every available ship to Indochina waters and that more would be on the way, perhaps as a signal to Hanoi that the President is determined to protect every American.

In other Indochina developments:

—Cambodian rebel pressure packed the Phnom Penh enclave two square miles tighter as government troops abandoned a highway strip to the southwest and shelling drove refugees to flight again in the north.

—Mutinous South Vietnamese soldiers seized control of at least two U.S. cargo ships carrying them to a tiny, isolated island and forced the vessels back to Vung Tau, 40 miles east of Saigon, over the weekend, officials said.

S. Vietnam Terminates 'Babylift'

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnam has refused to issue any more exit documents for Vietnamese war orphans to leave the country, effectively halting the "Operation Babylift" airlift, a senior American refugee worker said Monday.

"As of today, the evacuation of orphans is over," said Don Scott, director of World Vision in Vietnam.

"A senior aide to the minister (Social Welfare Minister Phan Quang Dan) told me, no more exit visas will be issued to orphans."

Conditions Ripe For Intrastate Truck Rate War

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Conditions are ripe for a rate war among Nebraska intrastate trucking firms, according to an official with the Nebraska Public Service Commission.

The potential for a rate war stems from a request by Trans Nebraska Express of Ceresco, a small young firm, to drop its rates 5% below what most other firms shipping freight intrastate charge.

James Paine, the commission's chief of motor transportation, said commission action on the application could have widespread ramifications not only for the trucking firms, but also for businesses and unions.

One of the basic questions being faced by the commission is an old one: Should the trucker with overhead costs lower than his competitors' be denied the right to charge shippers less?

SEN. KENNEDY...walks amid angry antibusing demonstrators.

Protesters Jostle Kennedy

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy was jostled and poked by a crowd of antibusing demonstrators Sunday as he tried to elbow his way to his car outside a junior high school where he had given a speech.

The crowd would not let him get to his automobile, and aides and police had to encircle Kennedy and link arms as they walked several blocks to a subway station.

The crowd of about 300 angry adults followed him all the way, shouting and waving pickets ripped from fences. Police said no arrests were made.

Kennedy was not injured, though a woman jabbed at him repeatedly with the point of a small American flag.

The Massachusetts Democrat has been a target of white parents since school busing to achieve racial integration began under a federal court order last September. Antibusing leaders say they are upset with Kennedy because he declines to condemn the busing.

"These groups have been following him around over the weeks and the months since last September," said Dick Drayne, a Kennedy aide. "They are very predictable. They do the same thing every time."

As Kennedy emerged from Atlantic Junior High School after addressing about 300 people at a Knights of Columbus breakfast, he was immediately caught in the crowd, which clawed and grabbed at him. People surrounded his car and climbed on top of it.

He tried to get into another car waiting about a block away, but the crowd followed, and the same thing happened again.

Then police and aides formed a protective circle as Kennedy walked toward the North Quincy station of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority.

At one point, Kennedy passed a bus, and the crowd chanted, "Why don't you take the bus, Ted?"

Just before he got into the station, a man grabbed him by the leg and had to be pulled away by police.

The senator boarded a Boston-bound train that was pulling into the station. Some of the demonstrators threw rocks as it rolled away.

Drayne said most of the demonstrators in Quincy, a suburb south of the city, were from East Boston, a predominantly Italian neighborhood unaffected by the current school busing program.

Boston schools have been disrupted by sporadic violence since the integration program began. A boycott continues in South Boston, a working class Irish neighborhood.

Five Professors To Be Honored

Five professors at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln will be recognized and rewarded for distinguished teaching Tuesday, during the annual Honors Convocation in the NU Coliseum.

About 2,700 students will also be honored at the convocation, which starts at 10:30 a.m. Dr. Roger W. Heyns, president of the American Council on Education and a recent visitor to China, will be the speaker.

Harry R. Hayme, president of the NU Foundation, will present each of the five a $1,000 check. Three of the awards are supported by the Amoco Foundation Inc., one by the Foundation, and one by the family of the late Mrs. Annis Chaikin Sorensen.

The Sorensen Award, given for excellence in teaching in the humanities area, will go to Prof. Bernice Slot. She has been teaching NU students to write and introducing them to literary scholarship since 1946.

A distinguished professor of English, she has authored or contributed to 13 books, three of which have been successful texts. She has been editor of "Prairie Schooner" since 1963, has written numerous publications on Willa Cather and gained international reputation for her award-winning study of Keats' poetry.

Dr. Jerry L. Petr, associate professor of economics, will receive an award for teaching in the humanities and social sciences area. He joined the faculty in 1966 and his teaching area is comparative economic systems and the economics of the Soviet Union.

Also honored in the area of social sciences will be Prof. Robert G. Works, associate professor of law. He teaches all freshmen law students how to do legal research and how to master legal writing. He is also advisor to the Nebraska Law Review and is involved in the annual Moot Court competition.

In the area of sciences, Dr. Robert F. Krejci, professor of restorative dentistry, will be cited. A nationally known expert in his field, he excels at demonstrating clinically the high technical procedures he teaches.

Dr. P. J. Cunningham, associate professor of animal science, is also the winner of an award in the area of sciences. He is cited for his personal interest in students and for the adaptation of new teaching approaches, such as the development of a genetic simulation computer program to aid in teaching a required animal breeding course.

intrastate rates it is in effect penalizing them for having efficient operations.

Moreover, since 1963 the commission has allowed trucking firms with high overhead costs on certain items to flag out of tariffs and charge more than its competitors.

Commissioner Jack Romans of Ord has expressed concern about such flag-outs, since shippers are not always aware a particular firm charges a higher rate on some commodities.

If firms with low overhead are denied cheaper rates, Paine said he fears it could harm the industry in the long run. More shippers might buy their own trucks to move goods rather than use a common carrier, he said.

On the other hand, Paine said other firms could ask for even lower rates in order to force the low overhead firms out of business. If that were to happen, the remaining competitors could cut out less profitable routes and commodities and hurt shippers in the long run.

Conditions Ripe For Intrastate Truck Rate War

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Conditions are ripe for a rate war among Nebraska intrastate trucking firms, according to an official with the Nebraska Public Service Commission.

The potential for a rate war stems from a request by Trans Nebraska Express of Ceresco, a small young firm, to drop its rates 5% below what most other firms shipping freight intrastate charge.

James Paine, the commission's chief of motor transportation, said commission action on the application could have widespread ramifications not only for the trucking firms, but also for businesses and unions.

One of the basic questions being faced by the commission is an old one: Should the trucker with overhead costs lower than his competitors' be denied the right to charge shippers less?

Trans Nebraska says it needs the rate cut in order to compete with Mills Film Transfer.

But a number of trucking firms, including Winter Bros., Bee-Line Motor Freight of Omaha, McAllister Transfer, Inc., of York, Seward Motor Freight, Ideal Truck Lines, Brown Transfer Co. of Kearney and Nebraska-Xpress of Omaha, are attempting to block Trans Nebraska's rate reduction.

Mills Film Transfer of Omaha is a small firm, according to Paine, with low overhead costs because it is non-union, has no loading dock and uses smaller trucks.

In 1973 when the general commodity carriers as a group requested a 5% general rate increase for loads less than 5,000 pounds and a 3% hike on loads 5,000 pounds and more, Mills asked to be exempted from the increase, he said.

For the first time, Paine said, the commission exempted, or "flagged out" as the industry calls it, a carrier from a general rate increase and allowed Mills to charge the lower rate.

At the time the other firms did not protest Mills' exemption, possibly because Mills was restricted to loads under 2,000 pounds. Such loads are less than truckload size and are usually less profitable for bigger firms.

In addition, Mills' lower rate was limited to its run between Lincoln and Omaha.

According to Paine, Mills has been doing a brisk business, particularly in liquor, on its Omaha-Lincoln run due to its lower rates and the fact that it offers same-day service.

"Since then Trans Nebraska Express has applied to operate its Lincoln-Omaha traffic at the same rates as Mills," Paine said.

Like Mills, Trans Nebraska is non-union and has low overhead costs, but unlike Mills it has large trucks and does not face Mills' weight restrictions.

The commission is expected to review the whole matter of tariffs and flag-outs Monday and to set Trans-Nebraska's request for a hearing.

Paine said the dilemma faced by the commission is that if it makes Mills and Trans Nebraska conform to the industry-wide in-nice Slote. She has been teaching NU students to write and introducing them to literary scholarship since 1946.

trastate rates it is in effect penalizing them for having efficient operations.

Moreover, since 1963 the commission has allowed trucking firms with high overhead costs on certain items to flag out of tariffs and charge more than its competitors.

Commissioner Jack Romans of Ord has expressed concern about such flag-outs, since shippers are not always aware a particular firm charges a higher rate on some commodities.

If firms with low overhead are denied cheaper rates, Paine said he fears it could harm the industry in the long run. More shippers might buy their own trucks to move goods rather than use a common carrier, he said.

On the other hand, Paine said other firms could ask for even lower rates in order to force the low overhead firms out of business. If that were to happen, the remaining competitors could cut out less profitable routes and commodities and hurt shippers in the long run.

Nearly 800 Orphans To Have Home In U.S.

By The Associated Press

Nearly 800 children of tragedy and war have arrived in this country from Vietnam for adoption. A few are seriously ill and others have chicken pox or measles but all will soon have a home in the United States.

"By American standards, many of the children should have been hospitalized," said Dr. Alex Stalcup, a volunteer pediatrician working with the tiny refugees in San Francisco. "By Vietnamese standards, they were the cream of the crop."

More than 400 orphans arrived in Seattle on Saturday night and more than 300 orphans were met by President Ford on their arrival in California.

Leaving Saigon on Sunday were another 178 orphans aboard two U.S. Air Force C141 transports. Another 100 orphans left aboard a commercial jetliner for Britain. Eighteen of the children are mentally or physically handicapped and will be cared for in a home near London.

A total of about 2,000 Vietnamese orphans are expected to be adopted by American families.

More than 150 of the children arrived in Chicago from Seattle on Sunday, turning the Pan Am reception center at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport into a giant maternity ward.

Other children on the flight from Seattle were transferred to planes taking them to Michigan and Minnesota, and 56 children remained on the Pan American 707 jet, headed for New York.

After Saturday night's flights, 61 orphans were hospitalized.

"Many of the children had diarrhea and serious fluid loss and were suffering dehydration," Stalcup told newsmen. "Several had high fevers. Some had pneumonia and other bacterial infections. Some were suffering chicken pox," he said.

All the children have been adopted or are being adopted, officials said. But details on where the children are going were withheld to protect the privacy of adoptive parents.

But the foster parents who met the children for the first time were not very secret about their emotions.

The tiny refugee orphans were greeted with tears of joy and anticipated happiness.

A young foster parent at O'Hare picked up her new tiny infant son from a bassinet and exclaimed, "I don't believe it! I don't believe it!" as tears rolled down her cheek.

Other families weren't as fortunate.

One 4-month-old girl died during the 22-hour, 9,055-mile flight from Saigon. She had been assigned to the Rev. and Mrs. James Beatty of Carbondale, Ill.

The couple had planned to receive two children, but welcomed only their new son, 6-year-old Thien, half-brother of the infant who died.

Meanwhile, a CP Air jet carrying 61 refugee-orphans landed at Vancouver International Airport on Sunday. Officials said 26 of the children are from Cambodia, and at least 10 of the others are survivors of Friday's crash of a U.S. C5A Galaxy cargo plane near Saigon. The plane was carrying 243 orphans and officials said about 100 survived.

In Washington, Rep. James Howard, D-N.J., said he is drafting legislation that would grant United States citizenship to orphans and abandoned Vietnamese children fathered by American servicemen.

He said that a meeting would be held on Monday with representatives of the State Department and the Agency for International Development.

He said granting citizenship to children whose paternity can be proved would help speed the adoption process.

IN GOOD HANDS . . . orphan rides in Ford's arms.

First Lady On Hand As Miracle Happens

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — First Lady Betty Ford put her arm around the stranger and asked why she was crying. The woman said she was afraid the Vietnamese orphan she had adopted was dead, but she hoped for a miracle. And later she learned the child was on a jumbo jet parked only a few feet away.

It happened on a rainy Saturday night when President and Mrs. Ford flew here from their Palm Springs vacation home to greet a charter plane carrying 325 Vietnamese orphans to new lives in the United States.

They came, the White House said, "because they are deeply touched by the plight of the South Vietnamese people and especially by the thousands of the innocent war orphans."

While the Fords waited for the sickest of the children to be placed in ambulances and buses, the First Lady approached the crying woman standing near one of the buses.

The woman told her the child she had adopted had been a passenger on the Air Force C5A Galaxy that crashed after taking off from Saigon Friday, killing up to 200 persons, most of them orphans.

She said she was afraid the child had died. But she came to greet the charter jet this night because she heard there were 40 survivors of that crash on board. She hoped for a miracle.

Within an hour she had it. Doctors reported the baby was on the passenger list.

"There was sheer excitement, both on the part of the woman and Mrs. Ford," said the White House aide who told the story. "It was very, very touching."

The aide did not identify the woman.

When the sickest children, most of them with chicken pox or diarrhea, were removed from the plane, President Ford boarded and observed an emotional scene — nearly 300 children, most crying and squirming in bassinets.

The President picked up a small girl wearing orange and yellow pajamas and carried her down the covered front ramp and on to a bus that would whisk her to a nearby Army medical center.

The President reboarded the jet and emerged minutes later with a tiny boy wrapped in a red blanket. He boarded a second bus and sat down near a front seat, looking into the child's face as volunteers brought other orphans aboard.

Mrs. Ford initially was not permitted near the plane because 18 of the children had chicken pox. White House physician Dr. William Lukash said the chemotherapy treatment she is receiving as a result of recent breast cancer surgery destroyed her immunity against infections from chicken pox virus. She has never had the disease.

After the 18 were removed from the plane, Lukash said it was all right for Mrs. Ford to stand at the bottom of the ramp.

Peking Predicts Revolt On Taiwan

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — Power passed to a new generation Sunday on Taiwan, the island to which Chiang Kai-shek and his Nationalist forces withdrew after the 1949 Communist victory on the mainland.

In a bitter exchange with the new president, Peking suggested that there now will be moves within Taiwan for a revolt to rejoin the mainland.

The 87-year-old Chiang suffered a heart attack and died Saturday night. His will, released two hours later, called on followers to carry out his unfulfilled dream to recapture all of China.

Yen Chia-kan, Chiang's 70-year-old vice president, was sworn in as president. But real power rests with Premier Chiang Ching-kuo, 65, the late president's elder son, who has been running the country since his father developed pneumonia in July 1972.

The Chinese news agency Hsinhua, in Peking's first comment on the death, called Chiang Kai-shek the "common enemy of the Chinese people" whose "hands were stained with the blood of the revolutionary people of China." It said his "reactionary rule" over Taiwan would continue because Yen was succeeding him.

Yen replied that "as long as we can eliminate the cause of domestic turmoil embodied in the wickedness of Mao Tse-tung, we can bring the blessings of peace and justice to free Asia and the free world."

Taiwan's 15 million people went into mourning for the man whom they regarded as almost immortal. Thousands of people swarmed to his residence in the suburb of Shulin to pay tribute, including U.S. Ambassador Leonard Unger.

The body of Chiang, dressed in a long gown and surrounded by grieving friends from his revolutionary past, lay in the Veterans Hospital room where he died.

Theaters, bars and other entertainment centers were ordered closed for one month.

and television stations suspended color broadcasts.

Reliable sources said the state funeral might be postponed indefinitely in the hope that it could someday be held on the mainland.

Body Of Kidnaped Youngster Recovered

SECAUCUS, N.J. (AP) — A three-day search for 6-year-old Robert Hall—hampered by gusting winds and choppy waters—ended Sunday when police in a helicopter spotted the youngster's body on the west bank of the Hackensack River.

Hall, who along with his 11-year-old sister, Esli, was kidnaped last month while they were walking to school in Union City, was found about 1,000 feet from where police found his sister's body last Friday.

A man forced the Hall children into a car while they were walking to the Edison School on March 20, according to schoolmates who witnessed the kidnapping.

Union City Police Chief Herman Bolte said the boy's body showed no evidence of physical violence. He said the boy was fully clothed. Bolte said an autopsy would be completed Monday.

An autopsy showed Esli Hall had been raped and strangled, authorities said. Her body was nude except for socks and a sweater around her neck.

"His body was starting to decompose and there's every indication the both of them were dumped in the river within two days after the abduction," Bolte said.

Bolte remained quiet on the progress of authorities' search for the Hall's abductor. He said all clues being followed through had been obtained independently of the discovery of the bodies.

"There was nothing out there to help us," Bolte said.

Police had speculated that sex was the reason for the kidnappings since no ransom demands had been made.

The victims' parents emigrated to this country from Cuba in 1968.

Their father, Robert, 54, is employed as a maintenance worker in Newark and is studying for a high school equivalency degree so he can enter college and become a teacher.

The family, which includes two older sons and an 8-year-old daughter, resides in a four-room apartment in Union City, where nearly half the population is Cuban.

Heart Victim Hoists Sails For Houston

TOULON, France (AP) — A French father of two who has just undergone open-heart surgery set sail for Houston, Tex., Sunday in a 25-foot boat.

Doctors have told Douglas Cellini, 43, that he has only a few years to live and he says he considers the voyage to be "something I think is useful."

The trip, he says, will show other heart patients "that we're not invalids . . . you have to fight it. You have to live."

Cellini ignored a strong wind blowing in from the Mediterranean and pushed off from the dock. His first stop is Barcelona, Spain, and thereafter he plans to sail to Texas via England and Canada.

Cellini, an insurance salesman, has had seven heart attacks. He was treated at Lyons, a center of French heart surgery techniques.

He is aiming for Houston because it is another city where a number of heart surgery techniques have been pioneered.

Clean Air
Who needs it!

by: Bob Boellstorff, Sales Manager
Bryant Air Conditioning and Heating Co.

There was a time when no one was really concerned with the availability of clean air. Clean air was something taken for granted like pure water from a clean snowfall.

But no more. Airborne dirt particles are carried into our homes with the regularity of a daily invasion. Suspended in the air we breathe are millions of particles of dust, dirt and pollen. The same dirt particles that soil draperies, discolor walls and settle down as dust everywhere. Pollen and tobacco smoke are also carried by the air and cause annoying irritation to many allergy sufferers.

There is a way to control this daily build-up of dust, dirt and pollen. An Electro-Air electronic air cleaner, installed in conjunction with a forced air heating/cooling system will remove up to 95% of all the dirt particles brought to it.

Bryant has arranged to again bring Lincoln homeowners one of the best values ever offered on electronic air cleaning equipment. The factory suggested retail selling price on our air cleaners is $343.07. But we have reduced them to sell for just $259.95. A savings of $83.12. You would do well to call 467-eleven, eleven today and arrange for one of our sales engineers to visit with you concerning this fantastic offer.

With all of today's talk about ecology, it is becoming much more important that we look to our environment and ways of improving it. An electronic air cleaner is one step all homeowners can take to improve their physical well being as well as protecting the tremendous investment placed in their home. The number to call again, 467-eleven, eleven, Bryant Air Conditioning and Heating Co. And remember, you can use Bryant's Easy Payment Plan, Mastercharge or BankAmericard.

Clean Air Who needs it!
by: Bob Boellstorff, Sales Manager
Bryant Air Conditioning and Heating Co.

There was a time when no one was really concerned with the availability of clean air. Clean air was something taken for granted like pure water from a clean snowfall.

But no more. Airborne dirt particles are carried into our homes with the regularity of a daily invasion. Suspended in the air we breathe are millions of particles of dust, dirt and pollen. The same dirt particles that soil draperies, discolor walls and settle down as dust everywhere. Pollen and tobacco smoke are also carried by the air and cause annoying irritation to many allergy sufferers.

There is a way to control this daily build-up of dust, dirt and pollen. An Electro-Air electronic air cleaner, installed in conjunction with a forced air heating/cooling system will remove up to 95% of all the dirt particles brought to it.

Bryant has arranged to again bring Lincoln homeowners one of the best values ever offered on electronic air cleaning equipment. The factory suggested retail selling price on our air cleaners is $343.07. But we have reduced them to sell for just $259.95. A savings of $83.12. You would do well to call 467-eleven, eleven today and arrange for one of our sales engineers to visit with you concerning this fantastic offer.

With all of today's talk about ecology, it is becoming much more important that we look to our environment and ways of improving it. An electronic air cleaner is one step all homeowners can take to improve their physical well being as well as protecting the tremendous investment placed in their home. The number to call again, 467-eleven, eleven, Bryant Air Conditioning and Heating Co. And remember, you can use Bryant's Easy Payment Plan, Mastercharge or BankAmericard.

People Feel Hopeful About Congress—Poll

By Louis Harris

Although Americans have given the performance of the 94th Congress a very low rating, they feel hopeful that the large number of new members and the "house cleaning" within congressional committees will produce important changes.

Thirty per cent of the public believes that this congress will do a better job than its predecessors, 6% think it will do worse and 51% feel there will be no substantial difference.

This guarded optimism is probably due to the people's feeling that the large number of new members recently elected to Congress will push for innovations in legislature and in the government's machinery.

A 49-29% plurality agrees that "with nearly 100 new members, Congress will now undertake a lot of changes in the country that are long overdue."

Louis Harris
Congress Rating Low

A 48-29% plurality believes that "in throwing out some old-time committee chairmen, this new Congress showed it really means business."

Yet the people are still skeptical about the influence of special-interest groups and the distance traditionally maintained between the Hill and the White House:

A lopsided, 72-9% majority feels that "Congress is still too much under the influence of special-interest lobbies." A heavy majority also believes that "one trouble with Congress is that it looks after its own benefit instead of acting in the public interest."

A 65-22% majority also feels that "Congress spends too much time disagreeing with President Ford and too little time on the business of the country"—which could indicate that Americans want Congress and the President to work more closely together on our economic problems.

There is no doubt that the new House of Representatives, with its sizable contingent of freshmen, has begun to raise the public's hopes about government. If the tax bill it has recently passed can boost the economy, this hope may turn into faith for the first time in years.

Nebraska 16th In Bicentennial Town Numbers

Nebraska ranks 16th in the nation in terms of the number of officially recognized bicentennial communities, according to the Nebraska American Revolution Bicentennial Commission.

The commission reported there are currently 80 communities, counties, townships or tribes which have been officially designated as bicentennial communities.

Once a community is recognized, an official bicentennial flag is presented at a ceremony marking the start of the bicentennial spirit in that community.

So far, 50 of the 80 communities have held flag ceremonies.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplana

San Francisco — Once I stood in the doorway of an ancient church in the Sonora desert and looked at a lost mine worth a million dollars.

I couldn't see it naturally. I just looked in the right direction. The storekeeper in that dusty little town told me: "When we drove the Spaniards from Mexico in the war of independence, they hid the rich mines. They didn't want the Mexicans to enjoy them."

The town is Arizpe. The church is the fortress type built by the Jesuits on the wild frontier.

The storekeeper said the mine is called the Lost Sobara. And the records clearly say: "From the mine, the workmen can see the entrance to the cathedral." A lot of people have looked for the Lost Sobara. I go mad for lost treasure.

It must be spring. The sun showered gold on the deck this morning. Somebody turned loose a couple of domestic ducks on the waters of Snug Harbor.

These ducks don't know how to take care of themselves. Do not know how to search for food like wild ducks do. They stand around on the small boat docks and quack angrily until somebody comes out and throws them some bread.

If you crush two cups of crackers. And mix in some chopped celery and a can of sauerkraut and a cup of applesauce and some ground mace. Then prop a lot of hot dogs around this conglomerate and bake it for 35 minutes at 375 degrees, you can serve six people.

Maybe you will be acclaimed as the most resourceful cook in the block.

"Did you see what he did at the last minute? Whipped up this thing for six unexpected guests!"

Perhaps you will make six people happy.

I got this off a cracker box. The cracker people would like you to eat more crackers. There's a gold mine in crackers if you are on the making, not the eating, end.

This is National Canned Salmon Week. Spread a little salmon on crackers. This will make two manufacturers happy. (Nobody asked the salmon how he felt about this National Week.)

I know where there's a Spanish shipload of pearls. In Baja California, people have looked all over. Dived with scuba gear. Used glass-bottomed boats.

The reason they can't find it is because the coastline has changed. The wreck is now inland! Covered with blown sand.

If I had time — But who wants to listen to the memories of an ancient mariner.

When I was a boy, crackers were sold by the pound. They came in barrels. The grocer measured them out in a brass scoop that sat on a scale.

If your grandmother was getting a big order, the grocer cut a piece of yellow cheese and put it on a cracker and gave it to you.

Those were the days, my friends!

About time to ring in National Peanut Week. These national weeks are announced by people who want you to do something about it. In this case, they want you to eat more peanuts.

Or maybe they want you to cook with them. My own recipe for peanuts is to put them in a bowl on the table.

Everybody says: "Don't let me eat too many. I won't want dinner."

Soon the peanuts are all gone. Thus you won't have to go into that hot dogs-sauerkraut-apple sauce thing. They ate too many peanuts and you are ahead of the game.

Plans Proceed For '76

Yes, Virginia, time doth fly. Only three years — in some respects it seems only like yesterday and in others like it was before the ice age — have gone by since the Democrats tore themselves apart again in Miami Beach and the smug Republicans met later in the same city to renominate you-know-who and his law and order buddy.

In the interim, McGovern, embarrassed at the debacle of 1972, got himself re-elected to the Senate. Likewise Thomas Eagleton, who was doubly embarrassed in 1972. Sargent Shriver got lost. During the last three years we have had two Presidents and three vice presidents and a gross of world-historical events, including a constitutional crisis and a bad national nightmare. We Americans have seen our economy spin, crash and burn, along with our foreign policy.

What prompted these happy thoughts is an even happier one. There is a presidential election next year. Many Americans are vaguely aware of that because scores of candidates have been making noises now for several months and they won't be quiet for another 18 months and it will get deafening.

The major parties are in the process of putting their convention plans together. Last week the Democrats heard formal bids from would-be host cities, including Cleveland, Kansas City, Los Angeles, New Orleans, Miami Beach and New York.

The Democrats ought to think seriously about Atlantic City, because it was from there that they last launched a winner.

At any rate, whether you accept it or not, time has inexorably marched on and Campaign '76 is upon us.

Would He Stoop So Low?

Big John Connally is on trial for bribery in Washington, D.C., and the former treasury secretary, Navy secretary, governor of Texas and one-time presidential aspirant has placed his fate in the very capable hands of defense attorney Edward Bennett Williams.

Williams is expected to suggest to the jury that Big John, a millionaire lawyer, politician and major league wheeler-dealer, would not stoop so low as to accept a measly $10,000 from the milk industry in return for counseling former Presid. Nixon about the political advisability of not blocking an increase in milk price supports. It does sound rather bush.

But not on second thought.

We don't know whether the government can prove its case against Connally. We don't know if he took any money from the milk people for pleading their cause with the President.

But it's plausible. And it's also plausible that a big league wheeler-dealer would stoop so low as to pick up a measly $10,000.

How do you think millionaire wheeler-dealers get to be that way?

Not by turning down $10,000 fees for influence peddling.

After so long it becomes a matter of reflex; as natural as putting catsup on cottage cheese or bourbon in branch water.

Grift the thousands and the millions take care of themselves.

Amtrak's New Equipment

There is good news for rail buffs if Amtrak, the nation's railroad passenger transportation system, lasts another two years.

By January, 1977, the first of 435 new passenger cars will be delivered. Over half of them will be double deckers which Amtrak President Paul Reistrup says "will drastically change the look and style of American travel."

The 235 double deck passenger cars, for use mainly in long distance travel, will include food service cars, coaches and sleeping cars, the first built since 1956.

It's too much to hope that the new equipment will measure up to that used on the old Orient Express, but hopefully the manufacturers can come up with a pleasing mix of dignity, comfort and utility.

New rolling stock with reliable equipment should help Amtrak's image immeasurably. So would a better network of routes and, of course, resolution of the problem concerning track maintenance. Replacing track beds will undoubtedly be the toughest and most expensive problem to solve and its resolution is the key to Amtrak's future.

ON TARGET

By DON WALTON

What do I know about Vietnam?

No more than you do. Less than some who have been there or those who are better informed through wider reading and listening.

But as long as we're choosing up sides again, I'm gonna pick mine.

We, through our government, erred in Vietnam. We prolonged the killing, deepened the devastation, spread the ruin and left behind as our legacy the graves of tens of thousands.

Tardily, our government backed out of Vietnam — at the insistence of the American people, who drove one president out of office and chose another who promised peace.

Richard Nixon did not deliver on his promise to withdraw Americans from combat until we had killed thousands more, and his proclamation of "peace with honor" is a lie soaked in blood. There was neither peace nor honor. But history will judge that deceit.

And the best way to provide it would be through the people themselves, not via a government aid program. The latter could be supplementary, but the former could be a far more dramatic demonstration of our concern.

I think Americans have been jolted by the evidence of horror in Vietnam, on the television screens, in pictures, in print. And, given the opportunity, I think they would respond.

There are sympathy and concern out there. And there is guilt, too. Not the guilt of "abandoning" South Vietnam, but the guilt of having prolonged the slaughter. It was our government, not us, which did it — but we let our government do it.

Finally, we gave Lyndon Johnson notice. But we let Richard Nixon keep it going, shamefully by substituting Vietnamese blood for American blood. Out went the American troops and down went the American bombs.

How do you organize a people's effort? If Americans are to give money and food and clothing and other assistance, they should be assured that all they give will reach the Vietnamese people.

It should be an organization of citizens — housewives, retired people, children, others who are willing to solicit and collect without administrative cost. Volunteers. No money for salaries. Everything that's given goes to the Vietnamese people.

With that kind of assurance, I think, the purses and billfolds of Americans would open up for the people of Vietnam.

Not that we can buy our way out of the guilt we must share. We cannot change the past. But we can help shape the future.

In a country in which most of us are rich (and that, very likely, includes you if you will only measure your wealth in worldwide terms and compare it to the poverty of most Vietnamese), there is money available to help.

If you have children, you hardly need be reminded how fortunate they are compared to those kids we see on film every night.

If volunteer groups would get it together in every state and every community, I am convinced there would be an outpouring of assistance for the people of Vietnam.

If the government wants to join in helping with food shipments, medical supplies, transportation assistance and other humanitarian activities, okay.

But this one should be chiefly a matter between two peoples. From the people of the United States to the people of Vietnam.

Must Purchase Meters

I have received the following letter from Lloyd I. Bevans, city clerk. How's this for control on everything a person owns? We have had our own pump since this place was built and pay for electricity to pump it. Now they want us to pay them for pumping our own water. We pay for our sewer and have never missed a payment.

Here is the letter: "In order to enforce the new sewer and water rates and for other reasons, the City Council has decided that residents having their own water well be required to purchase water meters. They will be required to have a meter for their own well and an additional meter for the town water supply if the town water is piped to the dwelling. Residents having their own water supply will be charged the minimum water rates of $6 per quarter and the sewer rate shall be the same as other users and the minimum charge of $6 shall be charged until a history is available for the winter months usage on which the sewer rates are based."

"Water meters must be purchased from the city. This requirement is so the city can control the type of meters used in order to carry repairs for the meters."

Residential Parking

I see the City Council still has not acted on the proposals by Mr. Sikyta to allow vehicles over one ton and vehicles 18 feet by seven feet to park on streets zoned residential. Mr. Sikyta brought this up over a year ago and it was defeated. He is a businessman and parking his business vehicles on the street makes for good advertising.

I have had two very nerve-shattering experiences in the past year concerning children dashing out from behind a parked camper and pickup right into the path of my car. This happened in a residential zoned area. There is an ordinance now forbidding such vehicles to park on residential streets, but the police have decided they won't bother to ticket these violations unless there is a complaint. I wonder how many other ordinances are on the books that they have decided to ignore. It will probably take a fatal accident to convince the police this ordinance should be enforced.

If these two proposals by Mr. Sikyta are approved, imagine how much more our residential streets would be cluttered with ugly campers, pickups and any other vehicle with four wheels that falls into these two groups. I can see through a passenger car windows but not through a camper, pickup or panel truck. Most of this street parking is not necessary. The owners are just too lazy to put their vehicles in the garage or on their driveway. Because of what Mr. Sikyta favors, I will not vote for him. I am sure parents of small children will think twice before voting for a man who seems to put his personal and business interests before those of the community he says he wants to serve.

Lee Wiles wrote a terrific and honest letter, but it struck a nerve. I speak as one who knows that old buildings, old machinery, old mortgages and small acres lead to no money for the house, no holiday meals, no waste of gasoline. Each time the car moves, it's a case of, "Was that trip a must?" Even trips to the doctor with a farm errand included are monitored. There are no extras for anything except machinery, building repairs, etc.

I have not had as much as one dollar of farm money to spend in quite a few years. It can be said to cut 20% but I can hardly eat less, and that's all I get.

The Dividing Line

In their promotion of a Nebraska dove season for the sake of dollars, the Game Commission chooses to ignore conservation facts and recommendations established some years ago by one of their former members. Dr. Elliott McClure, in his three-year study of the life cycle of the mourning dove in Iowa, has shown that, since in our region the dove is late in nesting, over 20% of the young do not leave the nests until after Sept. 1. Thus, "one-fifth of the population is endangered by a September hunting season."

Dr. McClure concluded from the results of his three-year research that "There should be no hunting of doves north of the 37th Parallel. Probably the division line should be along the southern border of Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado and across Nevada and Central California. All of the area north of this boundary should remain as a vast breeding range to maintain the species and to supply a shootable surplus." (Journal of Wildlife Management, Vol. 8, No. 2, Pages 130-132).

The doves need and deserve continued sanctuary in our state. Our state does NOT need the blood money of renewed dove season.

NEW YORK — Because of inflation, many Americans are experimenting with new and unusual culinary fare.

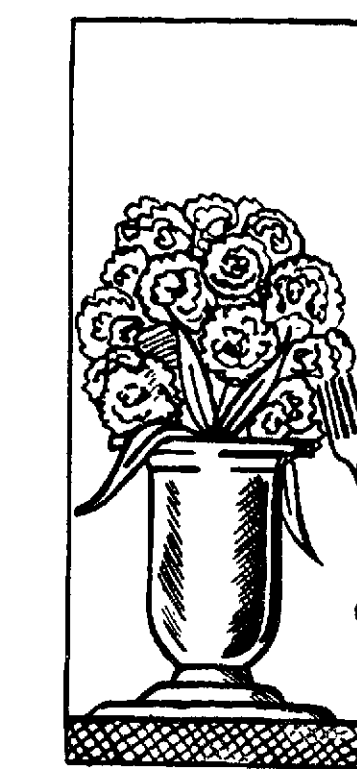

Some are cooking up vats of "garbage soup," an old Phyllis Diller recipe, which can be very tasty or very lousy, depending on the contents. The idea is that you scrape your leftovers into a pot, season heavily with garlic, and let it simmer. But even Phyllis admitted this can be more hazardous than exotic if your dinner dregs are short on beef and long on beans — or if you add doggy bags from inferior restaurants.

Other Americans are combing the countryside for weeds (a book called "The Weed Cookbook" is a must!) as spring approaches. But the problem here is deciding which portion of which weed will fortify you — and which will kill you. Dozens of magnificent wild plants can have delicious, vitamin-packed roots — and enticing but lethal leaves. Or vice-versa.

The latest trend of all in the culinary arts is to cook with fresh flowers. Plant a rose. Admire it. Sniff it. And when you've had done with the aesthetics, make rose-butter and spread it on toast.

You'll be the talk of the neighborhood. And everybody'll come over to smell your breath.

I cherish a book in my collection of exotic recipes titled "Cooking With Flowers," by a woman named Zack Hanle. A woman named Zack is like a boy named Sue — astounding. Zack digs things like dandelion omelets; and when I say dig, I mean dig. She weeds her lawn for breakfast.

People have been cooking with flowers for centuries. Shakespeare, Chaucer and Rousseau were partakers of a variety of corsage casseroles, for example. But in our rich society (well, it once was), we only looked at flowers and didn't think of doing much else with

TOM WICKER

An Illusion Shattered

WASHINGTON — In their flight from the Central Highlands and from the northern provinces of South Vietnam, Saigon's forces apparently abandoned hundreds of millions of dollars worth of American-provided military equipment and supplies, and American military officials in Washington are conceding that it was not for want of guns and ammunition that these forces broke so suddenly and completely.

In just three weeks, under communist pressure that appears to have been no heavier than offenses successfully resisted in the past, South Vietnam has come tumbling down, to such an extent that it becomes more every day that nothing can put the pieces together again.

There can be no satisfaction in this for anyone, regardless of his or her past position on Indochina and American intervention there.

It is essential, nevertheless, to try to see what has happened, and why and to learn from it for the future. I have been reading the last volume of Shelby Foote's magnificent "The Civil War: A Narrative," the closing chapters of which describe the crumbling of another artificial nation never had much chance to survive.

In the last stages of that American tragedy, Abraham Lincoln told a crowd celebrating his re-election: "Human nature will not change. In any future great national trial, compared with the men of this, we shall have as weak and as strong, as silly and as wise, as bad and as good. Let us therefore study the incidents of this, as philosophy to learn wisdom from, and none of them as wrongs to be revenged."

In that spirit, perhaps the first point to be made is that President Thieu of South Vietnam seems both to have panicked in his hasty orders to abandon so much territory and, when this produced further panic and precipitous flight by troops and civilians, to have been unable to reassert his control or to re-establish order.

This raises the question more sharply than any critic could whether the intrinsic weakness of Thieu's position and leadership had not been papered-over by the almost unquestioning support — in South Vietnamese politics — he had from Washington, including American acquiescence in his repressive tactics, and his staffing the army with corrupt and inept officers who were nevertheless loyal to him.

Surely the point also makes itself that after so many years of American training and supply, after all the boasts of "Vietnamization," the South Vietnamese army, in the first real test of its ability to fight without American assistance, largely disintegrated.

For one thing, it could not count on rescue by flights of B-52s, or on massed American firepower from troops and planes, or from American diversions like the mining of Haiphong harbor during the Easter offensive of 1972.

For another thing, its morale, leadership and discipline seem to have been sadly wanting when the test came — not just because of its political generals but because it did not have the motivation, the nation pride or the ideological conviction of its adversary.

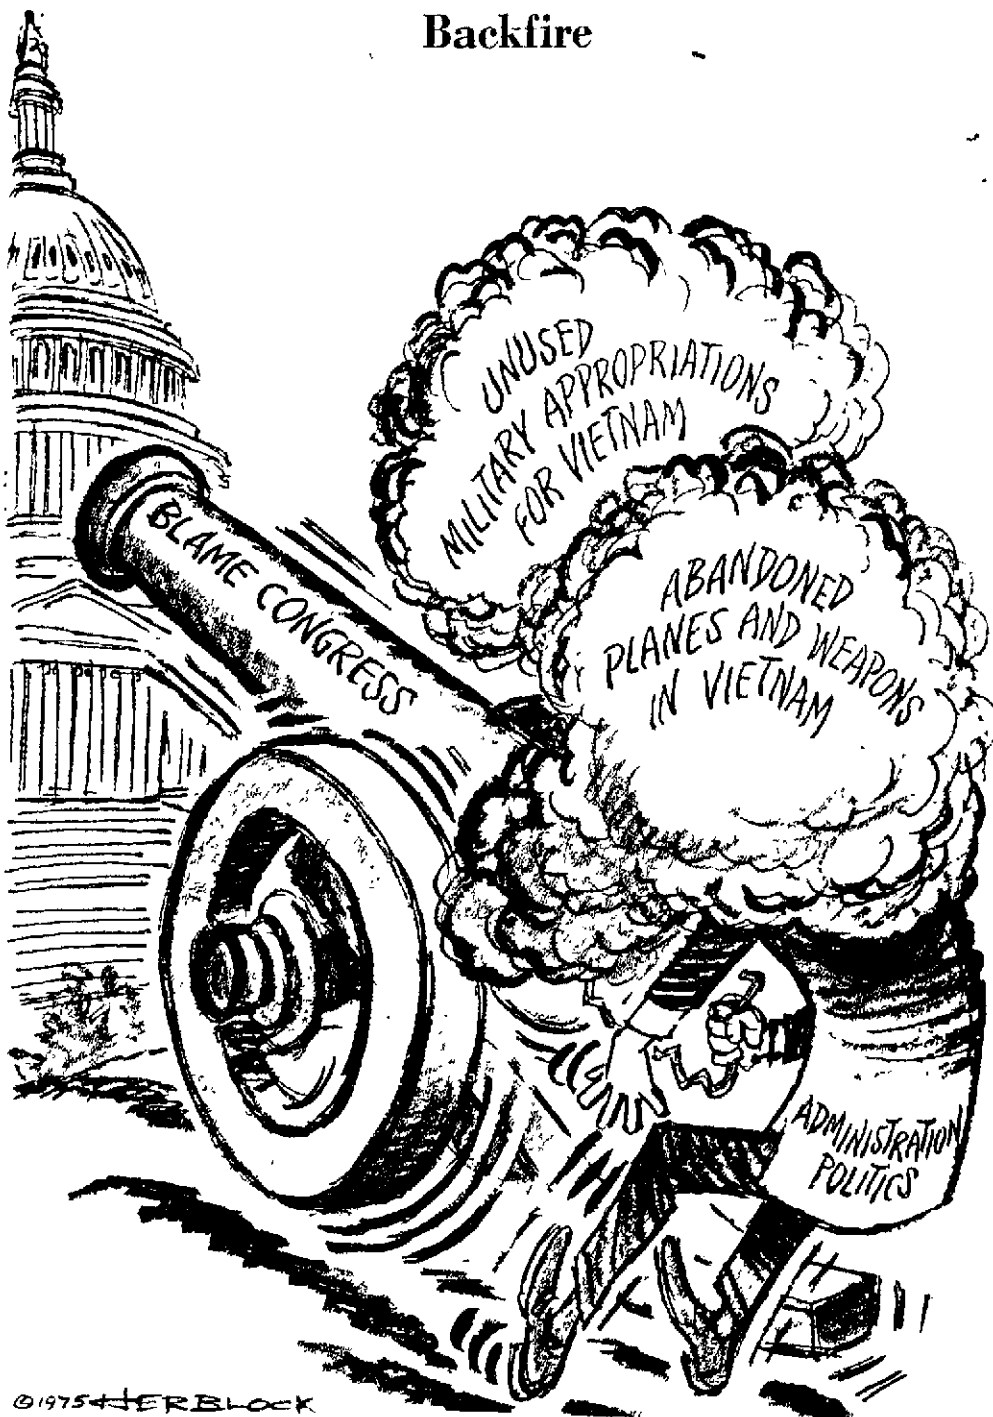

It seems clear also that the North Vietnamese forces moved swiftly and efficiently to exploit the collapse when it began to develop. Undoubtedly, one good reason was that they did NOT fear American bombing or other retaliation — a graphic suggestion that it was that threat and not Vietnamization or any fancied political or military development of the South Vietnamese state that in the past prevented North Vietnam from exerting final pressure on the weak structure maintained from Saigon and Washington.

Finally, a serious American miscalculation following the Paris peace accords of 1973 appears to have permitted Thieu to ignore — as did Hanoi — the peace machinery established in the accord, and to rely on military strength to maintain the status quo.

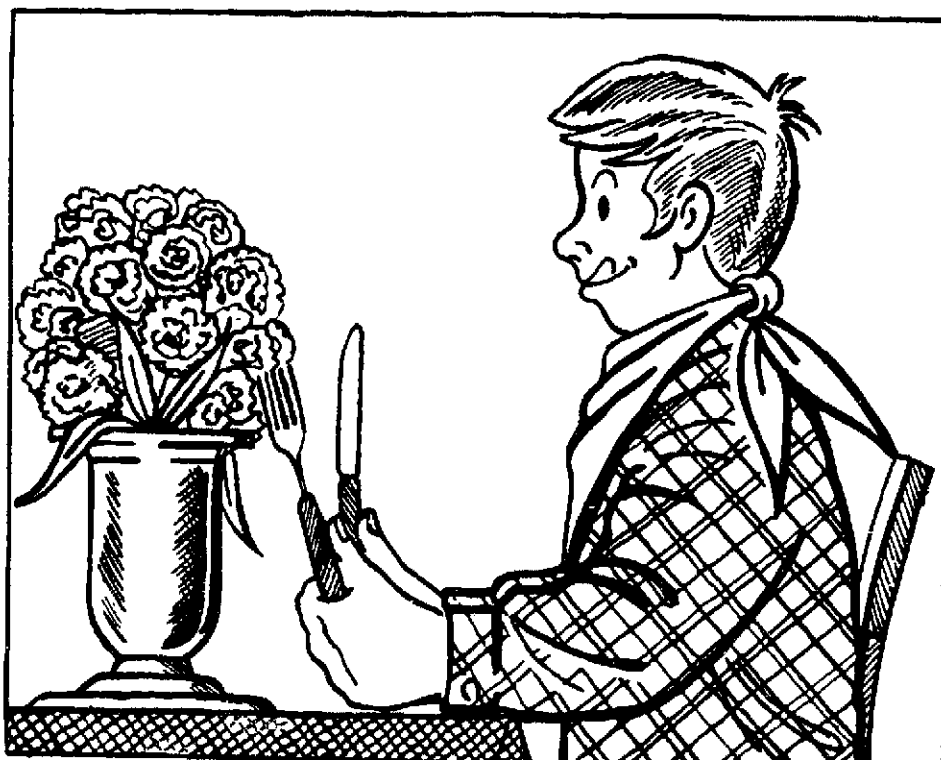

The wisdom to be gained from study of all this may not come quickly, or be easily accepted. For the moment, it is enough to say that the American goal of a non-communist independent South Vietnam was an illusion now shown to have been sustained only by a full commitment of American power. The one could not long survive the end of the other.

Now times have changed, and we can learn how to make stewed primroses, violet salads, chrysanthemum soup, carnation cupcakes, and fare of that sort. Gather ye rosebuds as ye may, braise, add eggs, saute, and spare the melatonin.

Poison ivy aside, cooked plants are superb. And flower cookery, today almost a lost art, is slowly coming back, said Ms. Hanle.

Her book is divided into chapters of menus for such common garden and lawn flora as mums, day lilies, elderflowers, marigolds, nasturtiums, squash flowers, violets and (in the tropics) yuccas. Judging from the number of recipes, the most versatile posies in the kitchen are nasturtiums and roses.

Example: to make "rose butter," an aromatic spread designed to pamper the polluted taste bud, you must . . .

Distribute about one quart of fresh rose petals over ungreased cookie sheets; dry them slowly in a 250-degree oven; transfer the petals, in layers, to a casserole, sprinkling each layer with salt (½ cup in all); top with one pound of butter; cover the casserole securely, and wait patiently for three days. The result is a spread for warm breads.

Nasturtiums can be made into aspics, consomme, chopped into mayonnaise, added to crisp salads, and put into sandwiches.

Dandelions, the most economical flower of all if you happen to have that kind of lawn, is a "a lowly and prolific little herb, loathed by lawn builders and adored by children, growing in the most wretched soil — and every part, from root to flower head, edible."

The dandelion roots are good for soups. The budlike whorls at the center make an excellent steamed vegetable — served with butter like baby artichokes. "And," says Zack, "the golden blossoms make wine or, when cooked in butter, have a flavor reminiscent of the bleached French asparagus." Yum.

Violets can be sugar-frosted or candied for a beautiful dessert, or used as a fresh-blossom garnish for tea sandwiches, salads and cakes.

Plans Proceed For '76

Yes, Virginia, time doth fly. Only three years — in some respects it seems only like yesterday and in others like it was before the ice age — have gone by since the Democrats tore themselves apart again in Miami Beach and the smug Republicans met later in the same city to renominate you-know-who and his law and order buddy.

In the interim, McGovern, embarrassed at the debacle of 1972, got himself re-elected to the Senate. Likewise Thomas Eagleton, who was doubly embarrassed in 1972. Sargent Shriver got lost. During the last three years we have had two Presidents and three vice presidents and a gross of world-historical events, including a constitutional crisis and a bad national nightmare. We Americans have seen our economy spin, crash and burn, along with our foreign policy.

What prompted these happy thoughts is an even happier one. There is a presidential election next year. Many Americans are vaguely aware of that because scores of candidates have been making noises now for several months and they won't be quiet for another 18 months and it will get deafening.

The major parties are in the process of putting their convention plans together.

Last week the Democrats heard formal bids from would-be host cities, including Cleveland, Kansas City, Los Angeles, New Orleans, Miami Beach and New York.

The Democrats ought to think seriously about Atlantic City, because it was from there that they last launched a winner.

At any rate, whether you accept it or not, time has inexorably marched on and Campaign '76 is upon us.

Would He Stoop So Low?

Big John Connally is on trial for bribery in Washington, D.C., and the former treasury secretary, Navy secretary, governor of Texas and one-time presidential aspirant has placed his fate in the very capable hands of defense attorney Edward Bennett Williams.

Williams is expected to suggest to the jury that Big John, a millionaire lawyer, politician and major league wheeler-dealer, would not stoop so low as to accept a measly $10,000 from the milk industry in return for counseling former President Nixon about the political advisability of not blocking an increase in milk price supports. It does sound rather bush.

But not on second thought.

We don't know whether the government can prove its case against Connally. We don't know if he took any money from the milk people for pleading their cause with the President.

But it's plausible. And it's also plausible that a big league wheeler-dealer would stoop so low as to pick up a measly $10,000.

How do you think millionaire wheeler-dealers get to be that way?

Not by turning down $10,000 fees for influence peddling.

After so long it becomes a matter of reflex; as natural as putting catsup on cottage cheese or bourbon in branch water.

Grift the thousands and the millions take care of themselves.

Amtrak's New Equipment

There is good news for rail buffs if Amtrak, the nation's railroad passenger transportation system, lasts another two years.

By January, 1977, the first of 435 new passenger cars will be delivered. Over half of them will be double deckers which Amtrak President Paul Reistrup says "will drastically change the look and style of American travel."

The 235 double deck passenger cars, for use mainly in long distance travel, will include food service cars, coaches and sleeping cars, the first built since 1956.

It's too much to hope that the new equipment will measure up to that used on the old Orient Express, but hopefully the manufacturers can come up with a pleasing mix of dignity, comfort and utility.

New rolling stock with reliable equipment should help Amtrak's image immeasurably. So would a better network of routes and, of course, resolution of the problem concerning track maintenance. Replacing track beds will undoubtedly be the toughest and most expensive problem to solve and its resolution is the key to Amtrak's future.

ON TARGET

By DON WALTON

What do I know about Vietnam? No more than you do. Less than some who have been there or those who are better informed through wider reading and listening. But as long as we're choosing up sides again, I'm gonna pick mine.

We, through our government, erred in Vietnam. We prolonged the killing, deepened the devastation, spread the ruin and left behind as our legacy the graves of tens of thousands.

Tardily, our government backed out of Vietnam — at the insistence of the American people, who drove one president out of office and chose another who promised peace.

Richard Nixon did not deliver on his promise to withdraw Americans from combat until we had killed thousands more, and his proclamation of "peace with honor" is a lie soaked in blood. There was neither peace nor honor. But history will judge that deceit.

Okay, so that is past. Now, the end appears at least to be in sight. Yet some Americans still want to prolong the horror. They talk about continued military aid. Even a resumption of bombing. We should just let it end.

Nothing could be better for the people of Vietnam than to end it. They can then stop killing one another, and begin to rebuild their country — perhaps a reunified country, under one government.

No more bombing. No more shelling. No more shooting. No more burning. Peace.

A coalition government in Saigon? Why not?

A communist government in Saigon? Why not?

We live with other communist governments — and even woo those in Moscow and Peking. We can live with a communist and, more important, nationalist government in Saigon and in Hanoi. And, more important, so can the Vietnamese.

But that's all politics. Our concern should be people, not politics. The current horror in Vietnam involves people — as it always, too often unnoticed, has.

In the wake of the Thieu government's impending collapse, hundreds of thousands of people have been uprooted. They are homeless, without food or hope. And so many of them are children.

They are in need. And that's what our response should concern.

No more military aid to prolong the killing. But assistance for the people of Vietnam from the people of the United States.

And the best way to provide it would be through the people themselves, not via a government aid program. The latter could be supplementary, but the former could be a far more dramatic demonstration of our concern. Voters Decide Tuesday Who'll Run For Election

Yard signs are sprouting like weeds, radio and newspaper blurbs are blasting out messages and political hopefuls are hitting the campaign trail.

Yet it all comes down to the wire Tuesday when Lincoln voters march to the polls and select the candidates who will move on to compete in the general election May 6 for various city offices.

Fifteen people are jostling for four City Council seats, three candidates are eyeing the mayor's job, while voters can choose from six school board and three Airport Authority candidates.

Eight candidates will be nominated for the council and two candidates will be nominated for mayor Tuesday.

Also on the ballot will be candidates for the Board of Education and Airport Authority, all of whom will be nominated for the May 6 general election.

Polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. in the city's 168 precincts.

Election Commissioner Bill Davidson is urging the electorate to vote early in the day to avoid the dinner-hour rush and subsequent long lines. A light voter turnout is predicted by Davidson.

While all four City Council members whose terms expire in May are seeking re-election, there will be at least one new face on the lawmaking body.

Boosalis, Bragg Differ On Police

By JIM DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

Only two mayoral candidates and about 15 people showed up for an informational discussion at the Unitarian Church Sunday night.

Mrs. Jo Bragg and Mrs. Helen Boosalis both said the workings of the police department are an issue in the campaign though each had different feelings about what should be done.

Incumbent Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf was not present because of a conflicting appointment.

Both Mrs. Boosalis and Mrs. Bragg agreed that the jail system should be taken out of police jurisdiction, but Mrs. Boosalis said she thought an administrative separation would be sufficient while Mrs. Bragg advocated a total physical separation.

Mrs. Boosalis said that after years of trying, the city finally succeeded in getting prisoners housed near the courts, thereby making transportation of prisoners easier.

Mrs. Bragg said the jail is supposed to be a correctional facility and correction efforts work out better when their location is separated from the police agency.

Of the recent drunk driving controversy, Mrs. Bragg said she feels the people protesting police activity "have a valid protest" and suggested that the police put a higher priority on decreasing serious crime.

Mrs. Boosalis said she would wait for the report, soon to be released, from Lincoln attorney James Bruckner who has been investigating charges of police harassment.

Mrs. Boosalis said she felt the most important issue of the campaign is the conservation of urban resources.

She said there are housing problems at all levels, adding that it is difficult to buy a new home at a price people can afford.

She said community development and housing rehabilitation efforts must be maintained and the housing stock must be improved.

The No. 1 issue of the campaign, according to Mrs. Bragg, is the twofold problem of transportation and unemployment.

Mrs. Bragg said she felt bus routes should be altered to provide service to industrial areas, and she advocated Sunday service.

She also said the city ought to get together with Lincoln employers and set up a program which would essentially give a limited subsidy for increased employment.

Council President Helen Boosalis is running for the job of mayor.

Mrs. Boosalis, with 16 years on the council, faces incumbent Sam Schwartzkopf and former social worker Jo Bragg on Tuesday's ballot. Mrs. Bragg, who has been challenging her opponents' record of achievements, is likely to be eliminated in the race.

Schwartzkopf, in office for eight years, is running on his record, while Mrs. Boosalis is challenging Schwartzkopf's past stewardship at the helm of the city.

Councilmen Steve Cook, Richard Baker and Bob Sikyta are seeking re-election.

The dozen other candidates are:

—Jim Carson, 40, an insurance and real estate broker.
—Rudolph Deinert, 65, a real estate broker.

—Bruce Douthitt, 28, an attorney.

—Robert Jeambey, 44, a Presbyterian minister.

—Ron Kurtenbach, 32, weekly newspaper editor and janitor.

—J.V. King, 61, owner of a hearing aid business.

—Hale Laws, an industrial employee.

—Stephen Marx, 36, a pharmacist.

—Bob Muggy, 56, a master plumber.

—Mary Rogge, 32, part-time pharmacist and housewife.

—William Thierstein, 39, an attorney.

—Steve Tiwald, 25, a health planner.

Council members are paid $4,000 a year, while the mayor receives $28,000.

Old West Panel Okays Contract For $540,000

By The Associated Press

The Old West Regional Commission has approved a $540,000 contract with the Society of Range Management to guide the five Old West states in a comprehensive two-year range improvement program.

The announcement was made Sunday by the co-chairmen, Warren Wood and Nebraska Gov. J. J. Exon.

The five commission member states are Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Montana and Wyoming.

Wood and Exon said objectives of the program will be to increase the amount of range acreage under intensive range management planning, upgrade the quality of rangeland, develop more usable forage and more stockwater, and increase recreational uses of rangelands.

The co-chairmen said early activities will include a comprehensive regional range inventory and preparation of two documentary films stressing the importance of range management techniques.

Publicity and a "lack of mobilization of support" probably put pressure on a New York jury for its guilty verdicts for two Attica defendants, according to Dalou Asahi.

The self-described "veteran" of three prison uprisings spoke about the Attica Prison rebellion to approximately 30 persons Sunday night at Commonplace, a religious house near the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Asahi, 24, is awaiting trial on a charge of murder stemming from his part in the rebellion in September 1971.

His Lincoln stop is his last on a 12-day speaking tour through the western part of the country. He said there are two reasons for the tour, to give an inside view of what happened and to raise $2,500 to keep himself out on bail. He has two weeks to raise the money.

On Saturday an eight-man, four-woman jury found John Hill, 23, of Buffalo, guilty of killing guard William Quinn, the first of 43 persons who died. Another Attica defendant, Charles Pernaslice, 22, of New York, was found guilty of attempted second degree assault.

According to Asahi, a survey taken in Erie County, N.Y., has shown that 22% of the people still believe that the hostages taken at the prison died by having their throats slashed by prisoners, as was first reported by corrections officials to newspapers.

At Last! Medical Insurance Goes To ... Er ... Covers Dogs

Chicago (UPI) — Doctors' bills can be nearly as expensive for dogs as for humans — and the payments aren't even tax deductible. So a suburban firm has obtained a license to sell comprehensive canine medical insurance.

The Canine Shield Insurance Agency of Des Plaines, Ill., says its $35 policy will provide up to $250 in yearly health and accident benefits for dogs 6 months to 8 1/2 years old.

Leonard Hoisman, company president, said other pet insurance plans exist, but none provide coverage as comprehensive as the canine shield policy.

He said he began collecting data on dog health care costs 15 years ago and tested market interest for more than a year before the agency was licensed to sell insurance in Illinois.

During that time, Hoisman said, he has received about 2,000 requests for information and applications from across the country.

He said the company hopes to be licensed in other states in a few months.

"The guy who has a mutt is just as interested in his mutt as is the breeder or the guy who owns a purebred dog," he said, noting that it costs as much to treat a mongrel as it does to care for a purebred.

Hoisman estimated the U.S. dog population at 56 million and said 14 million puppies are whelped each year. A high death rate in the first six months makes it unprofitable to insure puppies under that age, he said.

Two veterinarians who have requested applications said insurance is a valuable protection for clients.

Dr. David Epstein, a Northbrook, Ill., veterinarian, estimated that a serious leg fracture could require $150 in treatment, including X-rays, boarding, medication and possible surgery.

Hoisman said little research has been done on cat health insurance. He said dogs are better patients than cats.

"Cats, being loners, will, if they get bitten or if they get hurt, have a tendency to wander off and not come home until they are really sick," he said. "By that time, you have really so much more you have to do."

Entertainer Tiny Tim Injured In 3-Car Accident

Mechanicsburg, Pa. (AP) — Entertainer Tiny Tim was injured Sunday in a three-car auto accident in which a man was killed and four other persons injured, police said.

Tiny Tim, whose real name is Herbert Khaury, was in satisfactory condition at Holy Spirit Hospital in nearby Camp Hill with chest injuries.

State police said Paul Croop, 62, of Ithaca, N.Y., was killed in the collision, and his wife, Margarine, 55, was critically injured.

Police said Tiny Tim was a passenger in a car driven by his manager, James Cappeluzzo, 44, of Brooklyn, N.Y. Cappeluzzo and Abbe Mason, 25, of the Bronx, N.Y., were listed in satisfactory condition and another passenger, Robin Winters, 26, of New York City, was treated and released.

Police said they did not know what caused the crash, which took place at the intersection of Routes 11 and 114 at about 4 15 p.m. Sunday.

The scene is about 10 miles west of Harrisburg, Pa.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The past caught up with Charles Eddie Lucas.

Since escaping from a federal prison in Texarkana, Tex., eight years ago, he had lived a sedate life under another name in the central Missouri community of Laddonia.

He bought a house, married and by all accounts was well liked and respected in the town of 750.

But now he sits as a federal prisoner in the St. Clair County Jail in Belleville, Ill., awaiting transportation to Texas.

"I did some bad things before I went to prison," he said. "And I admit that."

In 1967 he walked away from a trustee's job at a garage outside the prison walls. He had served about 3 1/2 years of a 5-year sentence for auto theft.

Lucas, 45, who was known to residents of Laddonia as Eddie Edwards Jr., was arrested in the back yard of his home last week as he was repairing a pen that held his three adult raccoon-hunting dogs and a new litter of puppies. The Federal Bureau of Investigation would only say that someone recognized Lucas' picture from an old "wanted" flyer.

Lucas' wife, who said she did not know of his true identity until he was arrested last week, has pleaded with Bahn to release her husband. "Eddie came into our lives when things were at their worst," she wrote to Bahn. "God sent Eddie to us. Will Eddie be taken from us when things again are at their worst and we are unable to help him?"

"I knew it was going to come sooner or later, but I just put it in the back of my mind while I raised my family," he said. The woman who he married was divorced and had several children.

Lucas has lived in Missouri since his escape and until last year made his living as a truck driver. Economics forced him to sell his tractor-trailer and he went to work on a government project, building a dam and reservoir.

He says he is not "asking to get off scot free."

"I did something wrong and I know it. But why do I have to lose everything I built up ... what I want the judge to do is put me on five years parole. I can do five years; Lord, I just did eight. If they don't do that I have to say they are not even interested in rehabilitation."

More than 50 residents of the town, including the mayor and several leading businessmen, have signed a petition asking for Lucas' pardon. But U.S. Magistrate William S. Bahn says he was bound by federal law to send Lucas to Texas.

Parents Get Degrees, Raise Daughters Too

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Scott and Pat Weber say the only difference between them and working parents is "we had to study after we came home."

The Webers, who will graduate in May from the University of Nebraska Medical College in Omaha, have two daughters.

Although medical school is infamous for its demands on students' time, Mrs. Weber said, "I don't think this has affected our family life."

'Protective Of Family'

"We were confident we could do it," she recalls, and were "protective" of their family life.

They spent all the time they could spare with the girls, Heidi and Erica, now 7 and 6, studying only during spare hours during the day or after the children had gone to bed.

The Webers admit to having less social life than other students, but don't regard the loss as major.

They may have even less time for the girls, though, when they move to Lawrence, Kan., this spring after graduation. Weber plans to take his residency in pediatrics at the University of Kansas Medical Center in Kansas City, Kan., while Mrs. Weber will do her stint in psychiatry at the Menninger Memorial Hospital in Topeka.

More Responsibilities

"We will both have added responsibility then," Mrs. Weber said, because of the time spent commuting and her husband's being on call every third night.

The house they bought in Lawrence is in an area with other young couples who have children, which they hope will ease the difficulty of getting sitters.

"We've been amazed it has been as easy as it has to find people to sit," Mrs. Weber said, explaining that they have an Omaha neighbor is an "excellent" sitter for after school.

Not Problem At First

The first two years the Webers were in medical school, their daughters were in nursery school, and sitters weren't much of a problem.

Once the girls started to school, however, it became more difficult to find someone available for the odd hours. Mrs. Weber said that was especially true when the children were in kindergarten.

The Webers said they worked with social agencies and utilized some unwed mothers as sitters who lived in.

"Sometimes this didn't work out because many of the girls needed a foster home situation with parental and emotional guidance, which we didn't have time to provide," Scott said.

When the children's school hours became more regular, the Webers took the girls to a sitter rather than having one live in the home.

They Hoard Time

The Webers schedule their time carefully. "In order to keep the house up, we have an efficient work day on Saturday," Weber said.

They try to do all marketing on Saturdays and plan meals a week in advance to avoid making extra trips to the grocery store.

"I try to be as efficient about the housework as possible," Mrs. Weber said, adding, "but I don't make myself a slave to cleaning corners."

Although the Webers are indefinite about the future after their residencies are completed, they hope to stay in the Midwest.

He hopes to join a group of pediatricians in private practice while she assumes she will be associated with some agency or institution rather than going into private practice.

Family Consideration

When asked why they decided to specialize rather than go into general practice in light of the great demand today for family physicians, they said they didn't feel it would be "prudent" to both be on call all of the time.

They said they felt general practice — while it is "very attractive" in other ways — would "destroy any family life they might have," particularly if they were located in a small town where they would be the only two doctors.

Chicano Families Don't Have Lawns

By The New York Times

Albuquerque, N.M. — Anyone with grass outside his adobe home in South Valley, near this city, is affluent by Chicano standards. It means he can afford to use water on his little plot of land.

Among the approximately 40,000 Chicanos in this area, usually living on unemployment insurance, welfare, food stamps, or short-lived jobs, there are few patches of grass.

The land is as barren as the snow-capped mountains in the distance. The land is so hard that even a chill north wind does not raise much dust.

There are no sidewalks in the South Valley. No street lights. Most roads are unpaved and each house has a cesspool. There is no sewage system here. Gaunt dogs roam the flat land.

"People are surviving here, not living," says Larry Lopez, an official of a community center.

What most Americans in this year of spreading unemployment and inflation have come to know as a recession, has been normal for these Chicanos for many years. They are now in a full depression. Unemployment here is in excess of 12%.

"I do not think I will be able to buy food stamps," says Roberto Lujan. "It is too much."

Lean, gray and work-bent, he sits on an old sofa in his home, his wife, Aurora, standing behind him, her hands on the back of the sofa. On the wall, in a gilt frame, is a picture of Christ among sheep.

"My family goes to church," Lujan says. "Sometimes we have to push them. But they go."

He lives on $295 a month in Social Security, $66 a month welfare and $15 a month from a son who has a job. Ten children live in the house.

In the basement of the Laborers International Union, some unemployed men in work clothes sit on metal folding chairs, telling how nonunion contractors are taking advantage of the sharp competition for jobs to pay nonunion scale considerably below the average rate of $5 an hour.

Some are paying only $2 an hour. And in some food stands, they say, the rates are as low as $1.50 an hour. Unemployment insurance of $69 a month is what one man says he gets to support his wife and four children.

Another man, about 60, says he is finding it difficult to get work because he's considered too old. A young man says the excuse he gets is that they would rather have jobs for older men.

They talk of wives who bake cakes to sell house-to-house, of children who go forth with buckets of tamales to sell in the streets.

With reluctance, even with anguish, they talk of the illegal immigrants from Mexico, brought in to work for small wages on construction, ranches, restaurants. They try not to be too critical of the immigrants, who are taking their jobs.

Eventually they get around to politics. The Chicanos are Democrats, their commitment strong since the New Deal legislation of the Depression.

But now, while they still speak in anger against the Republicans in Washington, they no longer have much faith in the Democrats either.

The leader of the union local, Joe Bermudez, says that, bad as things are in this area, they are even worse for the Chicanos around Santa Fe.

"I found these two people who had nothing left in the house but leftover gravy. That's what they were living on."

Readers Speak On Who Should Wear Pants

DEAR ABBY: What's with Mel in Belleville? Is he crazy? He says pants on women should be declared valid grounds for an uncontested divorce.

Doesn't Mel know that lots of women wear pants because they're warm in the winter? (My mother has arthritis, and pants have been a Godsend for her).

I find them very practical on my job because I do a lot of stretching and bending and stooping. I'm not exactly petite, and while I never could get a dress in my size that was long enough to cover my knees, I can always find pants that cover me modestly.

Also with pants, I can wear different blouses, shirts and jackets. How many different ways can you wear a dress?

NUTS TO MEL

DEAR ABBY: I'm with Mel. I'm a woman who is tired of pants, but I can't find a decent looking dress anywhere. All the stores are loaded with pants suits

My husband says I've got the best-looking legs in town, and I'm not about to hide them if I can help it.

Where are the designers who will make women look like women again?

LOVES DRESSES

DEAR ABBY: This is for Mel: Speaking as a man (and I am not a homosexual or a transvestite), I personally find pants generally uncomfortable, so in private I wear pants as little as possible.

I would like to see the return of the Roman toga for males. In fact, there have been many civilizations in which men wore robes or skirts (the Catholic clergy), and even in Scotland, the kilts were popular.

The one advantage of pants for men were the pockets. But now, pants are made to fit so skin-tight that pockets are useless.

Sadly, comfort and efficiency are rarely the determining factors in fashion. Clothing is a big business that demands constant change for full employment and maximum profits. Maybe pants are men's revenge for Women's Lib. Anyway, when it comes to comfort, pants are the worst.

COMFORT-LOVING MALE

DEAR ABBY: Where does Mel in Belleville get off saying that all women look terrible in pants, only some look worse? And he thinks women should get back into skirts because that really arouses a man.

Well, I have news for Mel. He should try wearing a dress in Iowa in the winter. He'd freeze his fanny off. He should also try sitting on a metal chair on riding a bicycle in a skirt.

Furthermore, many men think nice, tight-fitting pants are much sexier looking than a dress.

FOR PANTS IN S.C., IOWA

DEAR ABBY: I like pants for two reasons (1) It has cut my hosiery bill down to nothing. (No one can see the runs in my stockings.) (2) My husband and I wear the same size, so it's increased my wardrobe by 50 per cent.

Opening lead - five of hearts.

Board No. 13 in the 1968 match between Italy and Australia was a lulu. When Pabis Ticci and D'Alelio were North-South for Italy at the first table, they got to four spades on the bidding shown.

It was only after West had led a heart and dummy came down that D'Alelio, to his horror, discovered the ace of spades among his possessions and realized he had been bidding with a twelve-card hand.

D'Alelio made seven and the only question before the tense

Bridge-O-Rama audience that was witnessing the replay of the hand was whether the Australian North-South pair, Smilde and Seres, would bid six or seven.

The first twelve hands seen by the spectators in the 20-board match had resulted in a dead tie, each team having scored 12 international match points. Board No. 13 seemed destined to produce a breakthrough for the Australians.

Smilde and Seres did not disappoint their followers. They got to seven spades after a complex auction that included a forcing club bid, a constructive response, an asking bid (four hearts), and a series of Blackwood bids inquiring about aces, kings and queens. The bidding went:

North	East	South	West
1♠	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2♣	Pass	2♣	Pass
4♥	Pass	4♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5♥	Pass
5 NT	Pass	6♠	Pass
6♦	Pass	6 NT	Pass
7♠

Seres had no trouble making the grand slam and Australia gained 1,500 points to pull ahead in the match 29 imps to 12. The Aussies then went on to beat their famous opponents 49 to 26 and eventually finished fifth in that year's world championship. The Italians, as usual, finished first.

WHERE I STAND

Dear people of Lincoln, I don't have much money so I can't buy much space in the Journal-Star. I don't have a column inch. This ad alone costs $117.90. That's too much! I'm a high school teacher, a factory worker, and a VISTA supervisor. I've been a janitor at UNL, and an editor of the Lincoln Gazette. I'm also the father of a wonderful son and the husband of a lovely wife. I'm against the Lincoln businesses' exploitation of the people of this community. The high prices, high profits, low wages, and boring jobs created by the business community deserve to be resisted. The business community must be heavily taxed to pay for needed community services like an excellent free mass transit system, housing, and health services. I want to help wage earners organize strong worker-controlled grass-roots unions that would in turn work to get increases in wages and benefits, and generally bring democracy to the workplaces of Lincoln. I'm for expanding the number of city council seats and for there to be elections by district so that the council will be more representative of the community. I'm against the $1.9 million "beautification" project for downtown Lincoln which is really a subsidy to the Chamber of Commerce. I'm for massive help for housing rehabilitation and for the construction of non-profit, low cost, well-designed housing. I'm for the creation of a progressive tax structure that would help low and middle income people and virtually confiscate the wealth of the rich. The funds gathered could be used for needed community services. I'm for Gay rights, feminism, and an ounce or less of marijuana. I'm for legalization of possession of the local cable television system. I'm for the police respecting the police act property. I'm for community control of the police but that's a long story. I'm also unsure of myself at times. I even like chocolate ice cream. If you can in good conscience vote for me for city council I would appreciate your support. Thanks for your time.

Sincerely,
Ron Kurtenbach

Plants Available For All Settings

Even if you have only a window flower box, patio or balcony, you may create a rainbow of instant color with bedding plants.

Weather permitting, local garden centers expect to have bedding plants available for planting within the next two weeks.

According to the Society of American Florists, bedding plants are the answer to every gardener's dream of instant beauty in even the smallest patch of earth.

Local florists or garden center experts can advise you which plants are best suited to your particular setting, whether it be sunny patio, shaded high-rise balcony or northern garden plot.

Dramatic begonias, with their colorful blooms and lush foliage, as well as many impatiens varieties, are shade lovers, but most other bedding plants, such as pansies, snapdragons, ageratum and alyssum, demand full sun.

The selection of bedding plants appropriate to any environment is almost endless, according to the experts, but during the long winter months, innovative horticulturists have been perfecting for this spring some brand new varieties of flowering plants, including five new varieties of New Guinea hybrid impatiens.

According to the Society of American Florists the impatiens has long been a popular bedding plant, well suited for an outdoor life in the garden or on the patio.

Unlike other impatiens, the New Guinea family requires considerable sunshine, lots of water and regular feeding.

All of the five new impatiens carry colorful and interesting names — Blue Butterfly, Red Magic, Pirouette, Orange Glow and Fanfare.

The Blue Butterfly is characterized by blue-violet flowers and green and light red variegated foliage, while Red Magic has brilliant red flowers and dark maroon leaves.

Also featuring bright red flowers, the Pirouette has an unusual swirl of long narrow green and yellow leaves.

Orange Glow features bright orange flowers and light green foliage while Fanfare has a radiant pink flower and green and yellow variegated leaves.

As part of the upcoming Bicentennial, horticulturists have also developed five new varieties of impatiens which will be released this summer. The names, reminiscent of the nation's beginnings, include: Yankee Doodle, Red Coat, Minuteman, Coppersmith and Brandywine.

Old Train Buffs Record Last Ride On Doomed Line

Boston (UPI) — There's no radio in Charles H. Paul's car. Instead, he listens to tapes — of train sounds.

Paul just made a new tape — of the final run of two almost 50-year-old Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority cars over the 3.8-mile elevated run from Forest Hills to Everett.

It contains all the screeches, whistle blasts, thumps and throbs of the doomed 75-year-old Sullivan Square Station and Forest Hills. The tracks are slated for demolition this spring and will be replaced by a subway line.

Paul, 43, a mechanic from Attleboro, was joined by about 100 train buffs who made the two 90-minute trips.

The tour aboard the two cars, which were in service from 1928 to 1961, was organized by the Boston Street Railway Association and attracted people from Chicago, Baltimore, Philadelphia and throughout New England.

At every stop, they got off to photograph the train and wayside stations. Nothing was left unrecorded. Pictures were taken of seats, doorjams, window wipers and support poles.

"In essence, each person in this group has a time they want to go back to," said James Dutkiewicz, 26, a Chicago free lance photographer.

"I've been all over the country — anywhere there's a train system, I'll go. Today we're going back to an earlier period. This is the last time we'll all get together on this line," he said.

Cecilia Clapp, a "trouble-shooter" at the Sea Shore Trolley Museum in Kennebunkport, Maine, said "I suppose all this is a mild form of insanity. It is quite harmless, however. But when the bug bites you, it does bite quite hard."

A ruddy-faced man with toughened hands, Paul talked about things of the past — including his blacksmith father.

"Sometimes I go to Sturbridge Village (a restored colonial village), but you know I never get to see all of that place because I hear the blacksmith working and I'm drawn to watching him. That's why I tape things and photograph them. The old sights and sounds are disappearing very, very fast," he said.

As the two old cars made their creaky way over the rain slicked rails and wooden ties, the group broke out bottles of wine and beer. And to the strains of Scott Joplin, they drank, talked, took pictures and made tapes.

Women More Likely Patients
(c) Chicago Daily News
Chicago — A Harvard physician contends that psychiatrists are likely to judge women as needing mental treatment merely because they are women. The bias, she said, is seen in the fact that many more women than men are labeled as psychiatric patients.

More than 60% of out-patients and in-patients are women and two-thirds of patients in community mental health centers and private treatment are women.

"We generally stay longer than do men in psychiatric hospitals and are admitted more frequently," said Dr. Mary C. Howell, associate dean of students.

"When physicians are asked to describe the 'typical complaining patient,' 72% referred spontaneously to women while only 4% referred to a man." "It is widely taught in medical schools that patients with psychogenic problems are likely to be women."

Nations Learn Soybean Magic

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Soy is becoming a magic word for successful food sales in the Spanish-speaking nations of the world, according to Dave Stock of Murdock.

Stock, currently vice president of the Nebraska Soybean Association, is a former Peace Corps worker with experience in Colombia.

Recently returned from an inspection trip of soybean crops and use in three nations, Stock expressed confidence in a better fed world via the soybean.

"It is protein for people, pork and poultry. People who can't eat meat because they can't afford it can eat soy protein, and as their incomes improve they can get protein from meats that come from soy meal via animals," he said.

Displaying samples of soy supplemented foods, one similar to familiar American cereals and one a baby cereal called White Star, he explained, "The American Soybean Association discovered that foods will sell much better in Mexico if they are advertised as soy supplemented or fortified. We just talked to the manufacturers about it and they put the information on the packages."

Checkoff Programs
Money collected from farmer contributions and checkoff programs by soybean growers goes to the American Soybean Association, which uses it to promote soybean consumption by humans and livestock as a method of increasing the market for soybeans.

Stock regards Brazil as a major problem for American soybean producers but not an insurmountable one.

"We have the ability to absorb technology much faster and in greater quantity than their farmers do. The secret to staying ahead of them is more research. It is a crime that so little research is being done on soybeans here in Nebraska. We need a checkoff program so we can find this research," he said.

Stock sees a program to sell soybeans to Brazil's own people as a major aid to American farmers. "They don't use meal much in feed yet, and they have a tremendous population that is growing rapidly which could benefit greatly from soy fortified foods," he said.

Brazil Has Potential
"Brazil has the potential to be a major food supplier to the world. They currently produce crops on only about 20% of the land that could be farmed in their country. Most of their increased production in recent years has come from clearing land, not greater production on (existing) farms," he said.

While land is cheap in Brazil, it is about the only thing that is low in cost. "There are tremendous shortages of farm equipment, chemicals and everything else farmers need. Transportation is a major problem and everything needed has to be imported," he said.

Stock said the need to import was forcing the Brazilian government to subsidize their soybean growers. "They are buying the beans from their farmers at a price higher than the export price and they often sell below the going world market price because of their desperate need for currency or foreign credit," he said.

"They are seeking all kinds of foreign investment, factories, investments in agriculture or just about anything else. Some major processing plants will be built in the near future," he said.

MALTED SOYA... makes rice cereal.

Brazil is expected to produce 300 million bushels of soybeans this crop year with harvest just getting underway now. Some 80% of the crop will be crushed and exported.

Mexico Demand Up
Stock said Mexico is already producing about all the soybeans it possibly can. "Their demand is increasing rapidly. They buy through their government in one lump once a year. They have about three months' supply left, so I expect them to come into the market making a major purchase fairly soon, which should help our price quite a bit," he said.

Stock views the soybean embargo imposed by the U.S. government as a major roadblock toward American soybean growers' marketing efforts.

"That darn embargo was the only thing they wanted to talk about everywhere we went. It is a prime factor in the soybean crop expansion we found in Brazil and in why other nations are securing a part of their soybean needs from Brazil," he said.

"American farmers must put up money for research and promotion via checkoff programs, but they must do a better job of growing beans. Soybeans play second fiddle to corn and cotton. If they cared for soybeans as well as for corn and cotton and put it on good land it could be a most profitable crop," he said.

Soybeans are important to nonfarmers too because they are the biggest earner of foreign exchange the U.S. used to buy Arab oil, according to Stock.

Ag Grads Not Hurting For Jobs

Omaha (AP)—Despite the recession, a good student graduating from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's College of Agriculture can often pick from two or three job offers, an official said.

But Dr. Duane Acker said that growing numbers are turning down job offers and planning to return to the farm.

Acker, vice chancellor for agriculture and natural resources, said in an interview that in the past years, the percentage of agriculture graduates in the Plains States going back to farming has been tripled and Nebraska is fairly typical of the region.

Dr. Glen Vollmar, chairman of the department of agricultural economics, said last year 37% of UNL's agriculture graduates returned to the farm. He added that they are not going back because they can't get jobs.

"Our sharp kids are seeing that there's a good long term future in farming," Acker said.

He noted that the world food crisis has accentuated the importance of farming and given the farmer a prestige he lacked a few years ago.

In addition, Acker said, it's "much more socially acceptable to go back to the farm than it was a few years ago."

39 Initiated Into Alpha Zeta

Thirty-nine University of Nebraska-Lincoln students were initiated into Alpha Zeta, an undergraduate agricultural honorary, at the chapter's annual banquet Sunday night in Lincoln.

Made honorary members of the group were Roger Sandman, deputy director of the Nebraska Department of Agriculture and Dr. E. R. Peo Jr., NU professor of animal science.

Rep. Charles Thone was the featured speaker at the banquet.

Weekly Grain Report

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The government appears to be doing some grain buying for PL 480 shipments at this time in an effort to bolster prices and encourage farmers to increase plantings this spring.

This is only one reason for improved grain prices, however. The opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway and the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers always leads to a little burst of price interest as the winter pattern of grain shipping changes to cheaper water transportation.

The scare of farmer cutbacks probably is also a factor in the futures market.

Feedlot owners seem to be buying more cattle at auctions in recent days, which could also increase demand for feed grains a little.

Spring planting weather in the Deep South has been adequate so far, but land preparation in the central and northern states and storm damage to cattle and winter wheat have all had an effect on the overall price situation.

The tremendous livestock storm losses may aid in improving prices somewhat for livestock producers as the wheat losses could aid wheat prices.

Just the reminder that old Mother Nature can still raise Cain with government crop projections will help the market. We have certainly had a reminder this past week.

Any long-term improvement is doubtful because exports are still sluggish at best with world crop conditions generally improved when compared to last year.

Spotlight on Agriculture

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Backyard Farmer will be back Monday on ETV stations throughout Nebraska. Wayne Whitney will be missing from the cast.

Whitney, a horticulturist, retired last year and will be replaced by Brent Hoadly, Clark Jensen and Emory Nelson who are District V horticulturists in the Extension Service.

Whitney hasn't quit, however, he is teaching classes in a number of schools around the area. He is probably the last general horticulturist still active in his field. Today everybody is a specialist.

The panelists will answer letters and phone calls at 7 p.m. on Tuesdays, and 9 p.m. on Mondays.

With a whole new crop of gardeners venturing into the world of green thumb, the nation's most popular ETV program ought to be even more popular in 1975.

The state's weed inspection system is a hopeless mess. The idea is to eliminate some specific kinds of weeds, with much this being one of the really important targets.

Glenn Kreuscher, state director of agriculture, recently fired a state weed inspector named Lucian Look for what some people claim was doing too good a job — but what the folks who work for Kreuscher refer to as a lack of tact.

Five members of the Sherman County Weed Board sent letters to Kreuscher, State Sen. Dennis Rasmussen and to Gov. Exon asking that Look be given his job back and complaining that thistles in Valley County are spreading into Sherman County.

Officials at both the state and county level admit that getting rid of the weeds is an expensive job and may be impossible unless a lot more money is put into the effort.

The trouble is the Legislature has never been willing to put up the cash. They set up a system and the landowner is told to clean up the weeds or his fields will be sprayed and the bill added to his taxes.

If you are a rancher with thousands of acres of land to spray, the bill can break you so you resist, perhaps even in court as the Hi-Point Cattle Co. did for nearly five years. This court delay prevented any real control of the weeds in the area for some time.

Rasmussen has indicated he will try to get some left over 2-4-D from the Vietnam War for use in trying to kill the weeds. Spraying can cost from $5 to $7 an acre and the aerial spraying firms are not willing to take on the job of flying over a farmer's land who doesn't want to be sprayed.

It is a terribly frustrating thing for a man who does control his weeds to have seeds blow in from a neighbor who refuses to do the same job. That is what produced the law in the first place.

We need to face the fact that we really don't have a truly effective way of getting rid of musk thistle short of digging them out with a shovel. On a ranch this is clearly impossible.

The first step ought to be to give the weed science people at the university some hard cash for a long term experiment with many methods of getting rid of the weeds. Until a really effective method of getting rid of the weeds is developed the whole thing is a headache for government officials, a huge expense for farmers and frustration for those who try to do the job with totally inadequate resources in terms of manpower, equipment and methods of killing the weeds.

Firing a man for doing too good a job isn't the answer and neither is paying a man to sit and twiddle his thumbs on some rinky-dink educational effort.

If the Legislature had any sense, it would chuck the whole program because you will never eradicate any one weed with presently available methods.

Many cattlemen are facing critically short supplies of feed this spring because of the late start pastures are getting. Many western areas of the state are very dry, and some substantial areas of pasture have been burned over as well, further reducing the available supply of feed.

Winter wheat grazing has more than doubled this year and some 60% of the stubble fields were used as pasture, leaving a lack of cover on these fields to protect the soil against the wind.

Farmers might well use some of these acres they are talking about taking out of production by putting them into some kind of forage crop for cattle feed for the summer and coming winter.

Recent announcements of food purchases by the USDA haven't included any meat. Purchases of things like peanut butter, orange juice, canned peaches and applesauce aren't doing the livestock industry a whole lot of good.

Nations Learn Soybean Magic

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Soya is becoming a magic word for successful food sales in the Spanish-speaking nations of the world, according to Dave Stock of Murdock.

Stock, currently vice president of the Nebraska Soybean Association, is a former Peace Corps worker with experience in Colombia.

Recently returned from an inspection trip of soybean crops and use in three nations, Stock expressed confidence in a better fed world via the soybean.

"It is protein for people, pork and poultry. People who can't eat meat because they can't afford it can eat soy protein, and as their incomes improve they can get protein from meats that come from soy meal via animals," he said.

Displaying samples of soy supplemented foods, one similar to familiar American cereals and one a baby cereal called White Star, he explained, "The American Soybean Association discovered that foods will sell much better in Mexico if they are advertised as soy supplemented or fortified. We just talked to the manufacturers about it and they put the information on the packages."

Checkoff Programs

Money collected from farmer contributions and checkoff programs by soybean growers goes to the American Soybean Association, which uses it to promote soybean consumption by humans and livestock as a method of increasing the market for soybeans.

Stock regards Brazil as a major problem for American soybean producers but not an insurmountable one.

"We have the ability to absorb technology much faster and in greater quantity than their farmers do. The secret to staying ahead of them is more research. It is a crime that so little research is being done on soybeans here in Nebraska. We need a checkoff program so we can find this research," he said.

Stock sees a program to sell soybeans to Brazil's own people as a major aid to American farmers. "They don't use meal much in feed yet, and they have a tremendous population that is growing rapidly which could benefit greatly from soy fortified foods," he said.

Brazil Has Potential

"Brazil has the potential to be a major food supplier to the world. They currently produce crops on only about 20% of the land that could be farmed in their country. Most of their increased production in recent years has come from clearing land, not greater production on (existing) farms," he said.

While land is cheap in Brazil, it is about the only thing that is low in cost. "There are tremendous shortages of farm equipment, chemicals and everything else farmers need. Transportation is a major problem and everything needed has to be imported," he said.

Stock said the need to import was forcing the Brazilian government to subsidize their soybean growers. "They are buying the beans from their farmers at a price higher than the export price and they often sell below the going world market price because of their desperate need for currency or foreign credit," he said.

"They are seeking all kinds of foreign investment, factories, investments in agriculture or just about anything else. Some major processing plants will be built in the near future," he said.

MALTED SOYA... makes rice cereal.

Brazil is expected to produce 300 million bushels of soybeans this crop year with harvest just getting underway now. Some 80% of the crop will be crushed and exported.

Mexico Demand Up

Stock said Mexico is already producing about all the soybeans it possibly can. "Their demand is increasing rapidly. They buy through their government in one lump once a year. They have about three months' supply left, so I expect them to come into the market making a major purchase fairly soon, which should help our price quite a bit," he said.

Stock views the soybean embargo imposed by the U.S. government as a major roadblock toward American soybean growers' marketing efforts.

"That darn embargo was the only thing they wanted to talk about everywhere we went. It is a prime factor in the soybean crop expansion we found in Brazil and in why other nations are securing a part of their soybean needs from Brazil," he said.

"American farmers must put up money for research and promotion via checkoff programs, but they must do a better job of growing beans. Soybeans play second fiddle to corn and cotton. If they cared for soybeans as well as for corn and cotton and put it on good land it could be a most profitable crop," he said.

Soybeans are important to nonfarmers too because they are the biggest earner of foreign exchange the U.S. used to buy Arab oil, according to Stock.

Ag Grads Not Hurting For Jobs

Omaha (AP)—Despite the recession, a good student graduating from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's College of Agriculture can often pick from two or three job offers, an official said.

But Dr. Duane Acker said that growing numbers are turning down job offers and planning to return to the farm.

Acker, vice chancellor for agriculture and natural resources, said in an interview that in the past years, the percentage of agriculture graduates in the Plains States going back to farming has been tripled and Nebraska is fairly typical of the region.

Dr. Glen Vollmar, chairman of the department of agricultural economics, said last year 37% of UNL's agriculture graduates returned to the farm. He added that they are not going back because they can't get jobs.

"Our sharp kids are seeing that there's a good long term future in farming," Acker said.

He noted that the world food crisis has accentuated the importance of farming and given the farmer a prestige he lacked a few years ago.

In addition, Acker said, it's "much more socially acceptable to go back to the farm than it was a few years ago."

Bestor Scholarship Winners Revealed

The Daniel S. Bestor scholarship has been awarded to 15 incoming freshmen for the 1975-76 school year at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Each scholarship, worth $250, is awarded on the basis of scholarship, financial assistance, high school recommendations and farm experience. The recipients are: Scott R. Beckman, Elgin; Brent Buckley, Cozad; Don Connot, Valentine; Kevin Cunningham, Laurel; Michael R. Foley, Blair; Joseph Keaschall, Ravenna; Mitch A. Klintworth, Seward; David Koperski, St. Paul; Michael L. Krab, Paxton; Steve Henry, Holbrook; Brian Hibberd, Lexington; Donald Mack, Kenesaw; Thomas Trotter, Omaha; Roy Rieger, Falls City; Dan Zwiebel, Ainsworth.

Two Beef Clinics Planned

Tips on showing cattle will be the focus of two junior beef clinics on April 15 in Lincoln and April 16 in North Platte, according to Dave Williams, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension livestock specialist. Both clinics, to begin at 6:30 p.m., will include pre-show management and foot trimming tips, detailed blocking and grooming pointers, a showmanship skit and discussion of the National Junior Beef Classic in Omaha and state activities sponsored by Extension and FFA.

Soccer Match On Heritage Days Agenda

McCook — A soccer match, a play presented by the University of Nebraska-Omaha and the appearance of Dr. Oswald Hoffman of the Lutheran Hour radio series will be among events scheduled for this year's German Heritage Days in McCook. The events will be a part of the May 3-4 celebration. The soccer match will feature teams from Denver, Colo., and Rapid City, S.D.

Two Students From David City Top Science Fair

Nebraska City (AP) — Two David City students won top awards in the senior division of the Nebraska Science and Engineering Fair in Nebraska City Sunday.

Sixteen-year-old Robert Siffing placed first and Mark Dahmke, 18, was second, giving both expenses-paid trips to the International Science and Engineering Fair at Oklahoma City May 12-17.

Dahmke also was awarded the $2,250 David Hawksworth Memorial Scholarship to the University of Nebraska.

Philip Hynes of Hastings won the junior division. A total of 280 high school and junior high school students took part in the competition.

Marriage Licenses Down 18%

Omaha (AP) — Cupid may be present but the number of marriage licenses issued in Douglas County this year is down by 18% compared with a year ago.

Experts said it was part of a national trend due to economic hard times, less unfavorable reaction by family and friends to couples living together and women starting careers before marriage.

Dr. Merlin Hofstetter of the University of Nebraska at Omaha's sociology department said the trend is not necessarily a lasting one. If the financial outlook improves, he said, more marriages might occur.

The Rev. Richard Turner of St. Paul Methodist Church said many young couples he counsels have more anxiety about marriage now. Most bear on economics in marriage.

Since last July 1, some 1,536 divorce petitions have been filed.

Democrats Have To Figure Out Who Party Can Get To Run For Senator

By EDWARD W. HOWARD
Associated Press Writer

Leaders of the state's Democratic Party will begin putting their heads together in coming months in hopes of developing a field of potential candidates for the 1976 race for the U.S. Senate.

The first name that comes to any political observers mind is that of Gov. J. James Exon. But indications are the conservative Democrat will try his luck in 1978 if he decides to bid for the Senate at all.

Take away Exon and who do you have?

The Republican heir apparent is Rep. John Y. McCollister, providing that Sen. Roman L. Hruska decides to step down.

Who Do Demos Have

If Exon is out, who do the Democrats have to face McCollister or Hruska?

"I think we have some strong potential candidates," said Dick White, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee.

"Of course the governor would be the front runner. I don't think anyone would argue that he would be anything but the strongest candidate if he decided to run," White said.

But without Exon?

"I haven't talked with them, so don't take this as a prediction on my part," White said. "But I think that Eugene Leahy in Omaha or (state Sen. Eugene) Mahoney, would be strong possibilities if they are interested."

When contacted by a reporter, Leahy didn't mince words.

"There's no way. I have no political ambition and I cannot imagine the circumstances that would develop to change my mind," the former Omaha mayor said.

Mahoney Likewise

Mahoney, recognized as a powerful force in the Legislature, used the same music, but different lyrics.

"For one thing I haven't the financial resources," he said. "I know my name has been mentioned, and I'm not trying to duck the question, but I just don't see things developing that way."

Mahoney and White each mentioned former state Sen. Richard Fellman as a potential '76 Senate candidate. And each mentioned Wayne Ziebarth, who failed in a bid to win the 3rd District Congressional seat last fall.

"Personally, I'd thrown in (State Sen. Johnny DeCamp's name, too," Mahoney said. "I could support a DeCamp or a Fellman," he added.

DeCamp is a Republican but "that's okay," Mahoney said. "DeCamp and Fellman are both young, well-versed in government and either could do a fine job representing Nebraska," Mahoney said.

Cavanaugh Mentioned

White and Mahoney each mentioned Omaha Sen. John Cavanaugh, but each also followed up by saying that Cavanaugh is considered a more likely candidate for the House.

White noted speculation that Exon would like to woo Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky into the Democratic fold.

"I don't know of any contact between the two," White said,

"but I will say I think the Democratic party could be very comfortable with Mayor Zorinsky, we would welcome him, and I think the mayor could be very comfortable as a Democrat."

Exon is standing by his now well-known and oft-quoted position, which boils down to the fact that the governor is keeping his own counsel and reporters aren't going to phrase any questions in such a way as to squeeze anything out of him. Exon says he has no intention

"at this time" of seeking the Senate post, but adds he has not unequivocally ruled it out.

While Exon describes the Democratic field as "wide open," he sees the Republican race as a foregone conclusion.

GOP Has 'Ducks Set Up'

"As usual the Republicans have their ducks all lined up in a row," Exon said.

"I am convinced that John Y. McCollister will be the Republican nominee in 1976... It is quite obvious that soundings have been made, and that there is an effort to oust Roman Hruska, hopefully by persuading him to step down, but otherwise by stopping him in the primary."

There has been speculation, which no ranking Republicans have acknowledged, that Hruska has been told by the party faithful and some financial backers that it is time he step aside and let McCollister seek his chair.

Hruska's office denies the senator has had any such contact.

How to get pleasure from a dog bite

Being bitten by a dog can be fun. However, if the dog is engaged to your best friend, it can be embarrassing.

If you are looking to get bitten by a four-legged dog, there are several things you can do:

- a) Make a noise like a bone.
- b) Dress like a cat.
- c) All of the above.

Some people think being bitten by a dog is a pain in the leg. This is not always so. Some dogs are very tall.

Democrats Have To Figure Out Who Party Can Get To Run For Senator

By EDWARD W. HOWARD
Associated Press Writer

Leaders of the state's Democratic Party will begin putting their heads together in coming months in hopes of developing a field of potential candidates for the 1976 race for the U.S. Senate.

The first name that comes to any political observers mind is that of Gov. J. James Exon. But indications are the conservative Democrat will try his luck in 1978 if he decides to bid for the Senate at all.

Take away Exon and who do you have?

The Republican heir apparent is Rep. John Y. McCollister, providing that Sen. Roman L. Hruska decides to step down.

Who Do Demos Have

If Exon is out, who do the Democrats have to face McCollister or Hruska?

"I think we have some strong potential candidates," said Dick White, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee.

"Of course the governor would be the front runner. I don't think anyone would argue that he would be anything but the strongest candidate if he decided to run," White said.

But without Exon?

"I haven't talked with them, so don't take this as a prediction on my part," White said. "But I think that Eugene Leahy in Omaha or (state Sen. Eugene) Mahoney, would be strong possibilities if they are interested."

When contacted by a reporter, Leahy didn't mince words.

"There's no way. I have no political ambition and I cannot imagine the circumstances that would develop to change my mind," the former Omaha mayor said.

Mahoney Likewise

Mahoney, recognized as a powerful force in the Legislature, used the same music, but different lyrics.

"For one thing I haven't the financial resources," he said. "I know my name has been mentioned, and I'm not trying to duck the question, but I just don't see things developing that way."

Mahoney and White each mentioned former state Sen. Richard Fellman as a potential '76 Senate candidate. And each mentioned Wayne Ziebarth, who failed in a bid to win the 3rd District Congressional seat last fall.

"Personally, I'd thrown in (State Sen. Johnny) DeCamp's name, too," Mahoney said. "I could support a DeCamp or a Fellman," he added.

DeCamp is a Republican but "that's okay," Mahoney said. "DeCamp and Fellman are both young, well-versed in government and either could do a fine job representing Nebraska," Mahoney said.

COLOR

Cavanaugh Mentioned

White and Mahoney each mentioned Omaha Sen. John Cavanaugh, but each also followed up by saying that Cavanaugh is considered a more likely candidate for the House.

White noted speculation that Exon would like to woo Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky into the Democratic fold.

"I don't know of any contact between the two," White said,

"but I will say I think the Democratic party could be very comfortable with Mayor Zorinsky, we would welcome him, and I think the mayor could be very comfortable as a Democrat."

Exon is standing by his now well-known and oft-quoted position, which boils down to the fact that the governor is keeping his own counsel and reporters aren't going to phrase any questions in such a way as to squeeze anything out of him. Exon says he has no intention

"at this time" of seeking the Senate post, but adds he has not unequivocally ruled it out.

While Exon describes the Democratic field as "wide open," he sees the Republican race as a foregone conclusion.

GOP Has 'Ducks Set Up'

"As usual the Republicans have their ducks all lined up in a row," Exon said.

"I am convinced that John Y. McCollister will be the Republican nominee in 1976... It is quite obvious that soundings have been made, and that there is an effort to oust Roman Hruska, hopefully by persuading him to step down, but otherwise by stopping him in the primary."

There has been speculation, which no ranking Republicans have acknowledged, that Hruska has been told by the party faithful and some financial backers that it is time he step aside and let McCollister seek his chair.

Hruska's office denies the senator has had any such contact.

Nebraska's designated hitter Steve McManaman slams his second home run of the three game OSU series in the second inning, off Cowboy pitcher Ed Lair. Russell Thedford is the Oklahoma State catcher. NU's

Fowler's HR Lifts Huskers Past OSU

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

It was the kind of situation that makes heroes or goats of those that face it. And Nebraska senior catcher Doak Fowler faced the situation square.

The score OSU 4, Nebraska 2, with a 3-2 count, two outs and two men on base in the bottom of the 10th inning when Fowler caught a fastball off Oklahoma State pitcher Ed Lair and sent it screaming over the left field fence to give the Huskers a 5-4 win Sunday at the NU diamond.

The win completed a three-game sweep over the Cowboys as NU opened its Big Eight campaign, while dropping OSU to 1-4 in the conference.

"When the count went to 3-2, I just choked up on the bat and crowded the plate," said Fowler. "He (Lair) threw the ball right down the can. There's no better pitch to hit than a fast ball."

"I've never faced that kind of situation before. I wasn't trying to do anything except meet the ball. It just felt like I was a little quicker and when I hit the ball it felt good. But I didn't know it would clear the fence until I rounded first base," said Fowler. "It has to be the biggest thrill of my life."

Second baseman Gary Healey singled with one out in the 10th to start the rally. Then Norm Glissman flied deep to center field. Ron Mittenberger singled, sending Healey to second. Fowler stepped to the plate and slammed a line drive 330 feet over the left field fence to give the Huskers the win.

Oklahoma State jumped into a 4-2 lead in the top of the extra inning when catcher Russell Thedford singled and went to third on a sacrifice bunt by Ric Bass. First baseman Dan Massari then singled, scoring Thedford. Jim Unmacht and Matt Mullins both walked, filling the bases. Massari scored on a fielder's choice to first base by Mike Miller.

But reliever Jerry Yingling fanned Tim Smith to halt the Cowboy rally and hold them to a 4-2 advantage.

The Huskers opened the scoring in the second inning when designated hitter Steve McManaman hit his second homer of the series over the left field fence to give NU a 1-0 lead. But that was the only damage the Huskers could do to OSU's righthander freshman Ed Lair until the 10th inning.

OSU, now 9-8, took command in the sixth inning when Thedford and Massari scored on three straight singles and an error. The Cowboys could only score those two runs however as they sent eight men to the plate in the inning, while Nebraska went through two more pitchers.

The Huskers tied the game in the bottom of the seventh when McManaman singled and then scored on a double by center-fielder Paul Haas.

Each team got a man on base in the ninth inning but neither could gain the score sending the game into extra innings.

It was the second loss in two extra inning games for the Cowboys, while it was the initial extra inning game for NU, now 5-8.

"We're real pleased to come from behind and win all three games," said NU coach Tony Sharpe.

"Each of the wins was well balanced between hitting and pitching. There were no individuals that really stood out. It was more of a team attitude thing," Sharpe said.

"We have more pitching depth than we've had in the past few years and with the exception of first base we have experience at all positions," Sharpe said.

"Another good thing is that we haven't had that much playing time and so we should be getting better as time rolls by," he noted.

Jerry Yingling, the fifth NU pitcher in the game took credit for the win. Yingling also gained a win in relief Saturday.

Fastballer Dave Beuhrer started for Nebraska and lasted 5 2/3 innings allowing only four hits and one earned run, while Kirk Eymann, who pitched four innings, faced only 16 batters and allowed only three hits and two runs.

Eymann sent 10 Cowboys down in order but gave up two singles and a walk precipitating the change on the mound.

The Huskers will host Buena Vista College of Storm Lake, Ia., in successive doubleheaders Monday and Tuesday. Steve McManaman will start the first game for NU Monday at 1:30 p.m., and Randy Benish is expected to start the second game.

Behagen's Block Stops Cleveland

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Ron Behagen said he anticipated Fred Foster's move with one second to play Sunday "and got lucky," stopping the Cleveland Cavaliers' bid for a National Basketball Association playoff berth.

Behagen blocked Foster's shot to protect Kansas City-Omaha's 95-94 victory, the Kings' ninth triumph in 11 games here this season. The Kings play the majority of their home games in Kansas City.

The Kings will play six games in Omaha next year but will carry the Kansas City name only.

"The key to this game was how the team played," Behagen said.

He said he thought the Cavaliers had the last play set up for Bingo Smith or Foster to take the shot.

Behagen said he "bumped Bingo to slow him down," and stopped Foster as the Cleveland shooter went to his left.

"It's a shame," said Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch, adding that "we're done. We don't have to worry about pumping up anybody now, including ourselves."

The Kings' Jimmy Walker said he was sorry Cleveland "couldn't make it, but I didn't want them to make it at our expense."

The loss, coupled with New York's win over Buffalo, knocked the Cavs out of the wild card playoff spot in the Eastern Conference. Both Cleveland and New York finished with 40-42 records but the Knicks got the playoff berth by winning three out of four games with the Cavs this season.

Kansas City-Omaha clinched second place in the Midwest division behind Chicago and will open a best-of-seven playoff series with the Bulls Wednesday night.

Sam Lacey's 17-foot jumper with 1:24 remaining gave the Kings a 95-90 lead after a nine-point run by the winners produced a 93-81 lead.

Two baskets by Dick Snyder, a field goal by Jim Clemons and a three point play by Jim Chones narrowed the deficit to 93-90 in the nationally televised game, blacked out in Omaha.

Cleveland's last four plays came on two free throws by Jim Brewer and a jumper by Chones.

Weiskopf Wins Greensboro Open Title

GREENSBORO, N. C. (UPI) — An aggressive Tom Weiskopf, back in the hard-driving form that made him the sensation of the tour two years ago, shot a three-under-par 68 Sunday for a three-stroke victory in the Greater Greensboro Open and a running start at the upcoming Masters Tournament.

"There's no doubt in my mind that I am swinging the club exactly the way I want to...the same way I did in 1973," said Weiskopf, who finished with a 72-hole total of 275, nine under par on the 6,700-yard Sedgefield Country Club Course.

"There's no reason I can't go into that final hole at Augusta with a chance to win," he said. "I've got a good chance at winning in Augusta and a better chance than 90 per cent of the field."

"I'm not saying I'm going to win—nobody can do that," he said. "But if it doesn't happen this year, I'm confident it will happen some year."

Al Geiberger, a 37-year-old tour veteran with six wins to his credit, fired his second straight five-under-par 66 Sunday to finish in second place with a total of 278, six under par.

Jerry McGee, a consistent moneywinner on the tour but yet to win a tournament, at one point pulled to within two strokes of Weiskopf when the leader had back-to-back bogeys on the 13th and 14th holes. But McGee double-bogeyed on No. 16 and finished with a 68 for the day and a 280 total, four-under par, that was still good for third place all alone.

Lee Trevino had a final round of 68 and wound up in fourth place with a total of 281, three under par. Dave Hill, runnerup in the first two rounds, finished fifth with a one-under 70 in the final round for a 282 total.

Johnny Miller shot a final round 71, even par, and tied 40-year-old veteran Ken Still for sixth place at 283, one under par. Maurice Bembridge of England finished with a 69 and stood alone at even-par 284.

"This tournament has given me some great satisfaction," said Weiskopf, who led every round. He opened with a seven-under par, followed with an even par 71 the second round and had one-over-par 72 on the third round.

"It has taken me three hard months of work to get my swing back to where it was in 1973," said Weiskopf, who finished second to Jack Nicklaus in the Heritage Classic a week earlier.

"I'm pretty satisfied with my mental attitude; I'm patient and my concentration is excellent," said Weiskopf.

Weiskopf said he played

"perfect golf for 12 holes" in the final round. He made his first birdie of the day on No. 5, a par four, by hitting a seven-iron to within 15 feet and sinking the putt. He followed that up with a birdie on No. 6, a par five, hitting a putter from the edge of trees around the green to within a foot or so and sinking the putt.

Weiskopf eagled No. 9, a par five, laying his second shot with a five-iron to within 10 feet of the cup and making the putt.

He ran into bogey trouble on the backside, three-putting No. 13 from 45 feet for the first bogey, then getting another on 14 when he pulled his drive into trees on the left.

On 17, however, he sank a 30-footer for a birdie to clinch the tournament.

The win earned Weiskopf $45,000 and pushed him to third on this year's money list with a total of $91,237.

Geiberger, who won $25,650 for second place, had six birdies versus one lone bogey in his round.

"I thought I'd have to shoot 66 to win the tournament," said Geiberger. "I did and I didn't come close. Tom was really swinging well and he made the clutch putts when he had to."

Veteran Arnold Palmer tied Geiberger for the best round of the day.

Lee Elder, who will be the first black ever to compete in the Masters' Tournament later this week, sank a five-iron shot from 181 yards out on the 14th hole for a double-eagle two. He finished the day with a two-under-par 69 and ended the tournament at 286, one over par.

"All I have to do is hole a few of those at Augusta and maybe I can be a surprise winner," said Elder.

"I'm playing with a lot of confidence," he said. "Next week (the Masters) will be a lot of fun and I'm looking forward to it."

Gary Player, the South African pro who is defending champ in the Masters' finished with a final-round 69 for a 292 total, eight-over par. Juan "Chi Chi" Rodriguez finished with a 71 and joined Elder at 286.

Dodgers-Reds To Open 1975 Baseball Season

Baseball's 1975 season, battling hectic early April weather and arriving just as the hockey and basketball playoffs begin, gets started with four games Monday.

Midwest storms have already postponed two of Tuesday's openers, forcing Pittsburgh's game at Chicago back to Wednesday and delaying Baltimore at Detroit until Thursday.

By then, the season will be well underway. It begins in Cincinnati where the Los Angeles Dodgers battle the Reds in a matchup of National League West title contenders.

The Dodgers-Reds game will jam Riverfront Stadium with 52,000 fans including Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Sen. Robert Taft, R-Ohio, who will handle the first-ball chores. The real first-ball job belongs to Reds' left-hander Don Gullett, who will oppose Dodger ace Don Sutton.

The sellout is the 10th straight for the two division rivals. And after their three-game series in Cincinnati, the Reds will help the Dodgers open their home season in Los Angeles a week from Monday. The Dodgers expect 45,000—their best Opening Day crowd in 11 years—for that game.

Cincinnati, which finished four games back of the NL champion Dodgers last year, will face Los Angeles seven times in the new season's first 10 days and the NL West pattern could be established in those two series.

Bob Gibson, baseball's win-nigest active pitcher with 248 career victories, will open for St. Louis against Dave McNally, making his National League debut after 12 seasons with the Baltimore Orioles.

The National League's other Monday opener will be in Houston's Astrodome with the Atlanta Braves facing the Astros. The Braves will use 20-game winner Phil Niekro against Larry Dierker for the Astros.

The American League's 75th season gets started in California Monday night with the Angels' Nolan Ryan facing Steve Busby and the Kansas City Royals.

Swihart Eyes Another $600,000 Mutuel Handle

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

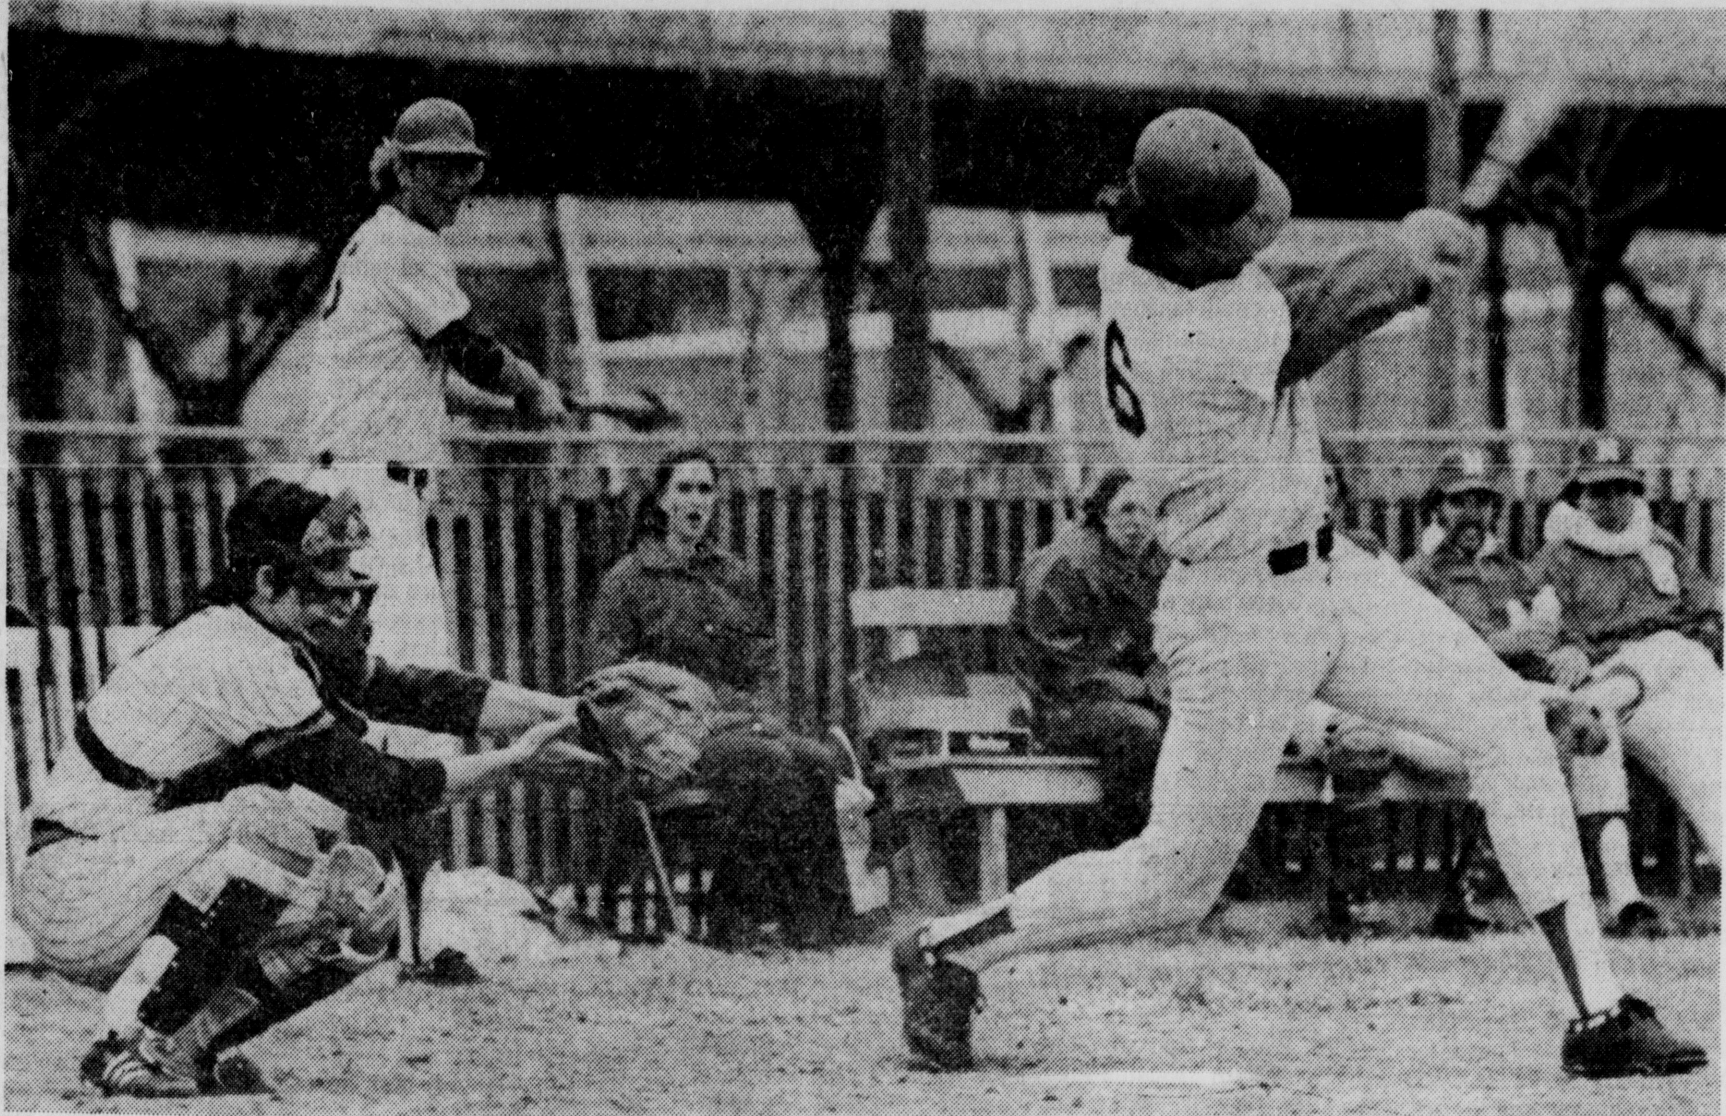

It seems that Al Swihart is never satisfied.

"Now that one of my predictions is completed, I'd like to see the other half done," said Fonner Park's general manager after Saturday's record-breaking day at the Grand Island track.

"I said at the beginning of our meet that we'd do $600,000 (in a one-day mutuel handle), now I'd like to do it twice," he noted. "But I'm really quite pleased how well we did Saturday."

Swihart should be pleased.

Fonner's mutuel handle of $639,664 was the best ever by a Nebraska race track except Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha. In the mutuel record onslaught, the daily double, one-race exacta and total race (exacta and win,

Weiskopf Wins Greensboro Open Title

GREENSBORO, N. C. (UPI) — An aggressive Tom Weiskopf, back in the hard-driving form that made him the sensation of the tour two years ago, shot a three-under-par 68 Sunday for a three-stroke victory in the Greater Greensboro Open and a running start at the upcoming Masters Tournament.

"There's no doubt in my mind that I am swinging the club exactly the way I want to...the same way I did in 1973," said Weiskopf, who finished with a 72-hole total of 275, nine under par on the 6,700-yard Sedgefield Country Club Course.

"There's no reason I can't go into that final hole at Augusta with a chance to win," he said. "I've got a good chance at winning in Augusta and a better chance than 90 per cent of the field."

"I'm not saying I'm going to win—nobody can do that," he said. "But if it doesn't happen this year, I'm confident it will happen some year."

Al Geiberger, a 37-year-old tour veteran with six wins to his credit, fired his second straight five-under-par 66 Sunday to finish in second place with a total of 278, six under par.

Jerry McGee, a consistent moneywinner on the tour but yet to win a tournament, at one point pulled to within two strokes of Weiskopf when the leader had back-to-back bogeys on the 13th and 14th holes. But McGee double-bogeyed on No. 16 and finished with a 68 for the day and a 280 total, four-under par, that was still good for third place all alone.

Lee Trevino had a final round of 68 and wound up in fourth place with a total of 281, three under par. Dave Hill, runnerup in the first two rounds, finished fifth with a one-under 70 in the final round for a 282 total.

Johnny Miller shot a final round 71, even par, and tied 40-year-old veteran Ken Still for sixth place at 283, one under par. Maurice Bembridge of England finished with a 69 and stood alone at even-par 284.

"This tournament has given me some great satisfaction," said Weiskopf, who led every round. He opened with a seven-under par, followed with an even par 71 the second round and had one-over-par 72 on the third round.

"It has taken me three hard months of work to get my swing back to where it was in 1973," said Weiskopf, who finished second to Jack Nicklaus in the Heritage Classic a week earlier.

"I'm pretty satisfied with my mental attitude; I'm patient and my concentration is excellent," said Weiskopf.

Weiskopf said he played

"perfect golf for 12 holes" in the final round. He made his first birdie of the day on No. 5, a par four, by hitting a seven-iron to within 15 feet and sinking the putt. He followed that up with a birdie on No. 6, a par five, hitting a putter from the edge of trees around the green to within a foot or so and sinking the putt.

Weiskopf eagled No. 9, a par five, laying his second shot with a five-iron to within 10 feet of the cup and making the putt.

He ran into bogey trouble on the backside, three-putting No. 13 from 45 feet for the first bogey, then getting another on 14 when he pulled his drive into trees on the left.

On 17, however, he sank a 30-footer for a birdie to clinch the tournament.

The win earned Weiskopf $45,000 and pushed him to third on this year's money list with a total of $91,237.

Geiberger, who won $25,650 for second place, had six birdies versus one lone bogey in his round.

"I thought I'd have to shoot 66 to win the tournament," said Geiberger. "I did and I didn't come close...Tom was really swinging well and he made the clutch putts when he had to."

Veteran Arnold Palmer tied Geiberger for the best round of the day.

Lee Elder, who will be the first black ever to compete in the Masters' Tournament later this week, sank a five-iron shot from 181 yards out on the 14th hole for a double-eagle two. He finished the day with a two-under-par 69 and ended the tournament at 286, one over par.

"All I have to do is hole a few of those at Augusta and maybe I can be a surprise winner," said Elder.

"I'm playing with a lot of confidence," he said. "Next week (the Masters') will be a lot of fun and I'm looking forward to it."

Fowler's HR Lifts Huskers Past OSU

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

It was the kind of situation that makes heroes or goats of those that face it. And Nebraska senior catcher Doak Fowler faced the situation square.

The score OSU 4, Nebraska 2, with a 3-2 count, two outs and two men on base in the bottom of the 10th inning when Fowler caught a fastball off Oklahoma State pitcher Ed Lair and sent it screaming over the left field fence to give the Huskers a 5-4 win Sunday at the NU diamond.

The win completed a three-game sweep over the Cowboys as NU opened its Big Eight campaign, while dropping OSU to 1-4 in the conference.

"When the count went to 3-2, I just choked up on the bat and crowded the plate," said Fowler. "He (Lair) threw the ball right down the can. There's no better pitch to hit than a fast ball."

"I've never faced that kind of situation before. I wasn't trying to do anything except meet the ball. It just felt like I was a little quicker and when I hit the ball it felt good. But I didn't know it would clear the fence until I rounded first base," said Fowler. "It has to be the biggest thrill of my life."

Second baseman Gary Healey singled with one out in the 10th to start the rally. Then Norm Glissman filed deep to center field. Ron Miltenberger singled, sending Healey to second. Fowler stepped to the plate and slammed a line drive 330 feet over the left field fence to give the Huskers the win.

Oklahoma State jumped into a 4-2 lead in the top of the extra inning when catcher Russell Thedford singled and went to third on a sacrifice bunt by Ric Bass. First baseman Dan Massari then singled, scoring Thedford. Jim Unmacht and Matt Mullins both walked, filling the bases. Massari scored on a fielder's choice to first base by Mike Miller.

But reliever Jerry Yingling fanned Tim Smith to halt the Cowboy rally and hold them to a 4-2 advantage.

The Huskers opened the scoring in the second inning when designated hitter Steve McManaman hit his second homer of the series over the left field fence to give NU a 1-0 lead. But that was the only damage the Huskers could do to OSU's righthander freshman Ed Lair until the 10th inning.

OSU, now 9-8, took command in the sixth inning when Thedford and Massari scored on three straight singles and an error. The Cowboys could only score those two runs however as they sent eight men to the plate in the inning, while Nebraska went through two more pitchers.

The Huskers tied the game in the bottom of the seventh when McManaman singled and then scored on a double by catcher Paul Haas.

Each team got a man on base in the ninth inning but neither could gain the score sending the game into extra innings.

It was the second loss in two extra inning games for the Cowboys, while it was the initial extra inning game for NU, now 5-8.

"We're real pleased to come from behind and win all three games," said NU coach Tony Sharpe.

"Each of the wins was well balanced between hitting and pitching. There were no individuals that really stood out. It was more of a team attitude thing," Sharpe said.

"We have more pitching depth than we've had in the past few years and with the exception of first base we have experience at all positions," Sharpe said.

"Another good thing is that we haven't had that much playing time and so we should be getting better as time rolls by," he noted.

Jerry Yingling, the fifth NU pitcher in the game took credit for the win. Yingling also gained a win in relief Saturday.

Fastballer Dave Beuhrer started for Nebraska and lasted 5 2/3 innings allowing only four hits and one earned run, while Kirk Eymann, who pitched four innings, faced only 16 batters and allowed only three hits and two runs.

Eymann sent 10 Cowboys down in order but gave up two singles and a walk precipitating the change on the mound.

The Huskers will host Buena Vista College of Storm Lake, Ia., in successive doubleheaders Monday and Tuesday. Steve McManaman will start the first game for NU Monday at 1:30 p.m., and Randy Benish is expected to start the second game.

Behagen's Block Stops Cleveland

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Ron Behagen said he anticipated Fred Foster's move with one second to play Sunday "and got lucky," stopping the Cleveland Cavaliers' bid for a National Basketball Association playoff berth.

Behagen blocked Foster's shot to protect Kansas City-Omaha's 95-94 victory, the Kings' ninth triumph in 11 games here this season. The Kings play the majority of their home games in Kansas City.

The Kings will play six games in Omaha next year but will carry the Kansas City name only.

"The key to this game was how the team played," Behagen said.

He said he thought the Cavaliers had the last play set up for Bingo Smith or Foster to take the shot.

Behagen said he "bumped Bingo to slow him down," and stopped Foster as the Cleveland shooter went to his left.

"It's a shame," said Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch, adding that "we're done. We don't have to worry about pumping up anybody now, including ourselves."

The Kings' Jimmy Walker said he was sorry Cleveland "couldn't make it, but I didn't want them to make it at our expense."

The loss, coupled with New York's win over Buffalo, knocked the Cavs out of the wild card playoff spot in the Eastern Conference. Both Cleveland and New York finished with 40-42 records but the Knicks got the playoff berth by winning three out of four games with the Cavs this season.

Kansas City-Omaha clinched second place in the Midwest division behind Chicago and will open a best-of-seven playoff series with the Bulls Wednesday night.

Sam Lacey's 17-foot jumper with 1:24 remaining gave the Kings a 95 90 lead after a nine-point run by the winners produced a 93-81 lead.

Two baskets by Dick Snyder, a field goal by Jim Clemons and a three point play by Jim Chones narrowed the deficit to 93-90 in the nationally televised game, blacked out in Omaha.

Cleveland's last four plays came on two free throws by Jim Brewer and a jumper by Chones.

Foyt Nets Trenton Victory

TRENTON (UPI) — A.J. Foyt of Houston, Tex. reached another milestone in his racing career Sunday when he won his 50th U.S. Auto Club Championship car race at the Trentonian 200.

The three-time Indianapolis 500 winner set a 200-mile distance speed record on the 1½-mile course by almost nine miles an hour faster than the previous record, completing the 134 laps in one hour, 17 minutes, 50.07 seconds with an average speed of 154.625 mph.

Foyt finished the race almost a full lap over last year's Indy winner, fellow Texan Johnny Rutherford.

Third place finisher Mike Mosley, a former Trenton winner, 1971, was running a lap down at the finish followed by Wally Dallenbach, Tom Sneve and Steve Krisiloff.

Roger McCluskey, Dick Simon, John Martin and Gordon Johncock rounded out the top ten. Johncock, the 1973 Indy winner retired after only 66 laps with engine problems.

A starting field of only 15 cars was narrowed due to mechanical problems and only nine were still running at the finish.

Oklahoma Outscores Colorado

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Oklahoma batters ripped Colorado pitching for five home runs Sunday as the Sooners took a 10-6 Big Eight win over the Buffaloes and completed a sweep of the three-game series.

Catcher Jacky Parish and left fielder Terry Jolly each hit a pair of home runs for the Sooners. First baseman Kelly Snider smashed a grand slam home run in the first inning, pacing Oklahoma to an early 4-0 lead.

The win was Oklahoma's 22nd in a row this season, just one short of the school record, and upped its season record to 26-2. The Buffs dropped to 8-6.

I-State Defeats Kansas

Lawrence, Kan. (AP)—Iowa State pushed across three unearned runs on an infield error and wild pitch in the 14th inning to earn a 4-1 Big Eight baseball victory over Kansas here Sunday.

Catcher Donb McClannahan started off the 14th by doubling just inside the left field foul pole. An error by second baseman Mark Hannison on a potential double play led to the first two runs and relief pitcher Dave Peters' wild throw produced the final score.

Del Ochsner turned in five innings of strong relief work to capture the win for Iowa State. The Cyclone's righthander bailed starter Kim Hyland out of a bases-loaded situation in the 10th and battled out of similar jams in 12th and 13th to save the game.

Righthander Bill Thurnhoffer turned in a sparkling showing for the Jayhawks as he kept the Cyclones off balance for the first 11 innings while surrendering only three hits and striking out seven.

Gilmore Downs Memphis, 98-91

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Artis Gilmore scored 10 points in the last seven minutes Sunday night to lift Kentucky to a 98-91 victory over the Memphis Sounds and give the Colonels a 1-0 lead in the American Basketball Association Eastern Division first-round playoffs.

Gilmore, who tallied 28 points and swept a career-high 33 rebounds in leading the Colonels past the New York Nets Friday night in the division championship, came back Sunday night to top all scorers with 25 points and haul down a game-high 20 rebounds.

Blalock Rallies For Win

TOKYO (UPI) — Jane Blalock shot back-to-back birdies on the 15th and 16th holes Sunday to knock stubborn Sayoko Yamazaki out of the lead and capture the $33,333 World Ladies Golf Tournament by one stroke.

Miss Blalock took a one stroke lead over Miss Yamazaki into the final round but lost the margin when she bogeyed the second hole. The two remained even until the eighth hole when Miss Yamazaki carded a bogey. They exchanged bogeys once more before Miss Blalock shot the consecutive birdies.

Miss Yamazaki holed a 30-foot chip shot on the 18th for a birdie to cut the final margin to one stroke, but Miss Blalock calmly two-putted the three stroke hole for a par.

Miss Blalock, who won the $70,000 LPGA Karsten-Ping Open in Phoenix, Ariz., last week, finished the tournament with a one-under par 221 in taking home the $6,666 first place purse.

Miss Yamazaki won $3,333 for her runner-up finish. Three strokes back in third was Sandra Haynie and tied for fourth place at 229 was Laura Baugh and Takao Kiyomoto.

NU Women Even Record

Excelsior Springs, Mo.—The Nebraska women's tennis team split a double dual here Saturday defeating Baker University, 8-1 and losing to William Jewell College, 6-5.

Friday Kansas State downed NU 6-3.

Top seed Kathy Hawkins won all three singles matches and teamed with Vicki Maseman to win all three doubles matches.

Maseman also won all three singles matches to help the team boost its season record to 2-2.

REGULAR SEASON ENDS

Opening Round NHL Playoffs To Begin

By The Associated Press

The battle lines have been drawn for the first round of the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup playoffs, topped by the neighborhood clash between the urban New York Rangers and suburban New York Islanders.

The opening-round best-of-three series get under way Tuesday on four fronts—the Toronto Maple Leafs against the Kings in Los Angeles, the Chicago Black Hawks against the Bruins in Boston, the St. Louis Blues against the Penguins in Pittsburgh and the Islanders against the Rangers in Madison Square Garden.

Thursday the scene shifts to Toronto, Chicago, St. Louis and the Islanders' suburban Nassau Coliseum. If any series needs a third and decisive game, it will be played Friday, except if the Maple Leafs and Kings return to Los Angeles. That game would be played Saturday.

The division champions—Philadelphia Flyers, Vancouver Canucks, Montreal Canadiens and Buffalo Sabres—drew first-round byes. Those four teams enter the second round with the four first-round winners.

Those eight teams will be ranked in order of total points

Here's a baseball riddle you can have some fun with . . .

How can a team get three triples and three singles in one inning, and still not score a run? . . . Answer: First two men triple and are out at the plate trying for an inside-the-park homer . . . Next man triples and stays at third . . . Next two men get infield singles with the runner holding third . . . Last man smacks a ground ball that hits runner going from first to second . . . Batter gets credit for a hit, but runner is out, making three triples, three singles, three outs . . . and no runs!

Did you know there used to be league baseball teams with the nicknames of "Spiders," "Bees" and "Blue Jays" . . .

Do you know which teams had these names? . . . "Spiders" was the early nickname for Cleveland's team . . . The Braves were known as "Bees" in the 1930's . . . And the Phillies changed their name to "Blue Jays" at one time in the 1940's.

Do you have any idea what was the smallest city ever to have a big league baseball team? . . . Answer is Troy, N.Y. . . . Troy was in the National League from 1879 to 1882.

I bet you didn't know . . . that Bourbon Supreme is the world's only charcoal distilled straight bourbon.

Denver Whips Utah

DENVER (AP) — Ball-hawking guards Mack Calvin and Fatty Taylor ignited Denver's fast-break offense in the third quarter as the Nuggets defeated the Utah Stars 122-107 Sunday in the opening game of their American Basketball Association playoff series.

Game No. 2 will be played Monday night in Denver.

The Nuggets, who led 53-51 at intermission, scored seven straight points early in the third period to take a 60-53 lead that they never relinquished. Taylor and Calvin accounted for six points with steals early in the period.

Denver's bench strength began to prevail in the final period. After Utah rookie Mose Malone hit three quick baskets to cut the Stars' deficit to 96-89, Denver then outscored Utah 22-4 over the next four minutes to put the game away.

Denver had eight players in double figures, led by Ralph Simpson with 20, Mike Green with 19 and Calvin with 17.

Utah's burly forward Randy Denton had 26 points and Malone scored 25 as well as pulling down a game-high 19 rebounds.

Taylor accounted for five steals, Simpson had four and Calvin added three.

GENERAL TIRE

Three Were First . . . Students Enjoy Regent Terms

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Their four-month terms as the first students in history to sit as members of the University of Nebraska Board of Regents has ended.

The three NU campus presidents agree they've enjoyed serving on the board, saying the elected regents have changed their attitudes about students as a result.

Student body presidents Ron Clingenpeel of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Jim Sherrets of the University of Nebraska at Omaha, and Greg Sorensen of the NU Medical Center in Omaha took office as non-voting regents, allowed by a constitutional amendment Nebraska approved last November.

"I think it's opened up some more channels of communication," said Clingenpeel, 22, of Valentine.

Less Snapping To Sherrets, 21, said the "most important" effect the campus presidents had was to check the previous practice when "members of the board would simply jump and snap to, because President (D. B.) Varner or one of the chancellors suggested a policy."

The Omahan said regents used to take "very important actions concerning students without student input that should've been there. We were there to give it."

Clingenpeel agreed. "There were probably some questions that wouldn't have been asked, had the students not been on the board when major issues came up. It has also fostered 'a little different' (improved) relationship between the chancellors and the campus presidents," he said.

Sorensen, 25, who "originally had some reservations" about students sitting as regents, said he's a "very strong supporter now."

The Pharmacy College graduate student said besides providing better interaction and information for elected regents about student-level activities, it allows students "to learn the proper administrative procedures and how to properly get things done and most effectively."

"I'd like to commend the regents and the university administration for the outstanding way we were received and the amount of extra work they had to go to for us," Sorensen said. "They've been extremely patient with us and we've obviously made a lot of mistakes."

"I think overall," Clingenpeel said, "my experience with the other board members was very good," and most "were very open and very helpful."

But he said there "were certain times when certain members were a little antagonistic" toward the students, and others "when they could've listened a little better."

Clingenpeel, who will graduate in August and hopes to attend theological seminary in New York City, said, "Everybody just has to sit down and look each other in the eye and be honest," adding, "a lot of good can come out of this. Once any member of the regents doesn't do this, I think they're going to be running into some problems."

Sorensen, who will enter medical school in July on a six-year road toward medical practice, said he believes the students had an "indirect effect" on issues, allowing regents to "formulate a more concise opinion before voting."

Sherrets said the student regent seat is a "very influential slot if used properly," the key being "communication that wasn't possible before."

He Has Two Views Sherrets, who will graduate from UNO in May and begin studying law at UNL in the fall, said he has two views on being denied a vote.

"If our primary function is to represent our constituency, namely the students, we can be very effective" even without a vote. However, "students having a vote on the board would be in a more strategic and more influential position to ensure follow-up on issues."

Clingenpeel said he believes student regents should have a vote because the tally on some NU business affairs "might have been closer than they turned out to be."

Ron Clingenpeel

"I disagree," Sorensen said, noting the unpaid posts are designed to keep regents "separate and apart" from the university to govern it effectively. If student regents could vote, it "would definitely be a conflict of interest."

Sorensen said students couldn't vote objectively, for example, on proposals for housing, tuition and programs, "regardless of how detached they feel they are, or how objective."

Sorensen remains in office until May 1 when the Medical Center will elect a new student body president.

Sherrets said he considers the regents "to be very professional in their attitudes and approach. I felt highly honored to be a part of it," and "to serve the state at so young an age."

35 Killed, Missing In Swiss Avalanches

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — More than 35 persons were reported killed or missing as wet spring snows sent weekend avalanches and mudslides thundering down the Alps in Switzerland, Austria and Italy.

Authorities in Austria and Switzerland issued major alerts as new snow continued piling up, threatening rescue workers and isolating many alpine ski resorts.

The list of dead and missing in Switzerland was placed at 21 Sunday.

Austria reported eight persons killed and the toll could rise. Police said a mudslide flattened the farmhouse of Johann Trattner near Tamsweg and killed seven persons. They feared that five other persons believed to have been in the house also perished.

Another mudslide destroyed the home of a 78-year-old Austrian pensioner near Arricah, killing the man and seriously injuring his wife.

In Switzerland, 10 persons were missing after a snowslide crushed several houses near Acla-Medel Sunday and another slide caught 13 Swiss youngsters sking on Ascharner Furkli Peak. Nine freed themselves, one was rescued alive and the three others were found dead.

In the Blenio Valley an avalanche crushed a chalet where a Swiss family was vacationing, killing the parents, friend.

Three Were First . . . Students Enjoy Regent Terms

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Their four-month terms as the first students in history to sit as members of the University of Nebraska Board of Regents has ended.

The three NU campus presidents agree they've enjoyed serving on the board, saying the elected regents have changed their attitudes about students as a student.

Student body presidents Ron Clingenpeel of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Jim Sherrets of the University of Nebraska at Omaha, and Greg Sorensen of the NU Medical Center in Omaha took office as non-voting regents, allowed by a constitutional amendment Nebraskans approved last November.

"I think it's opened up some more channels of communication," said Clingenpeel, 22, of Valentine.

Less Snapping To
Sherrets, 21, said the "most important" effect the campus presidents had was to check the previous practice when "members of the board would simply jump and snap to, because President (D. B.) Varner or one of the chancellors suggested a policy."

The Omahan said regents used to take "very important actions concerning students without student input that should've been there. We were there to give it."

Clingenpeel agreed: "There were probably some questions that wouldn't have been asked, had the students not been on the board" when major issues came up. It has also fostered "a little different (improved) relationship between the chancellors and the campus presidents," he said.

Sorensen, 25, who "originally had some reservations" about students sitting as regents, said he's a "very strong supporter now."

The Pharmacy College graduate student said besides providing better interaction and information for elected regents about student-level activities, it allows students "to learn the proper administrative procedures and how to properly get things done, and most effectively."

"I'd like to commend the regents and the university administration for the outstanding way we were received and the amount of extra work they had to go to for us," Sorensen said. "They've been extremely patient with us and we've obviously made a lot of mistakes."

"I think overall," Clingenpeel said, "my experience with the other board members was very good," and most "were very open and very helpful."

But he said there "were certain times when certain members were a little antagonistic" toward the students, and others "when they could've listened a little better."

Clingenpeel, who will graduate in August and hopes to attend theological seminary in New York City, said, "Everybody just has to sit down and look each other in the eye and be honest," adding, "a lot of good can come out of this. Once any member of the regents doesn't do this, I think they're going to be running into some problems."

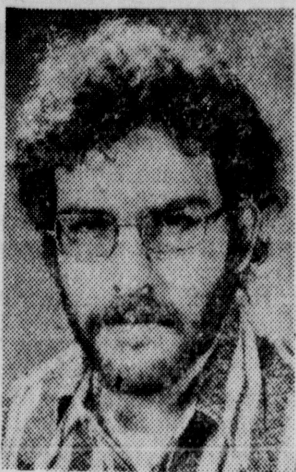

Sorensen, who will enter medical school in July on a six-year road toward medical practice, said he believes the students had an "indirect effect" on issues, allowing regents to "formulate a more concise opinion before voting."

Sherrets said the student regent seat is a "very influential slot if used properly," the key being "communication that wasn't possible before."

He Has Two Views
Sherrets, who will graduate from UNO in May and begin studying law at UNL in the fall, said he has two views on being denied a vote:

"If our primary function is to represent our constituency, namely the students, we can be very effective" even without a vote. However, "students having a vote on the board would be in a more strategic and more influential position" to ensure follow-up on issues.

Clingenpeel said he believes student regents should have a vote, because the tally on some NU business affairs "might have been closer than they turned out to be."

Ron Clingenpeel

"I disagree," Sorensen said, noting the unpaid posts are designed to keep regents "separate and apart" from the university to govern it effectively. If student regents could vote, it "would definitely be a conflict of interest."

Sorensen said students couldn't vote objectively, for example, on proposals for housing, tuition and programs, "regardless of how detached they feel they are, or how objective."

Sorensen remains in office until May 1 when the Medical Center will elect a new student body president.

Sherrets said he considers the regents "to be very professional in their attitudes and approach. I felt highly honored to be a part of it," and "to serve the state at so young an age."

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Six bullet-riddled bodies were found near the Buenos Aires airport Sunday, bringing to 132 the number of persons slain this year in warfare between left-wing and right-wing guerrillas.

A large poster near the bodies said "We belonged to the ERP, the Montoneros and FAR" — three major leftist guerrilla groups.

No organization immediately claimed responsibility for the killings, but it was believed they were the work of the right-wing Argentine Anti-Communist Alliance, which claims to have killed more than 100 Argentine leftists over the past year.

The victims found near Ezeiza International Airport, about 15 miles south of here, appeared to be in their 20s and most were wearing sports clothes. Police issued no identification.

The ERP — People's Revolutionary Army — is Argentina's principal Marxist guerrilla group. The Montoneros and the Revolutionary Armed Forces (FAR), both affiliated with the Peronist left, merged in 1973.

On Saturday, leftist gunmen killed two men. Jose P. Chirini, a right-wing Peronist labor leader, was shot down in an industrial suburb north of here and a police corporal was killed in Zarete, an industrial town 50 miles to the north.

Soviet Spaceship Aborts Mission

©The New York Times

Moscow — The Soviet Union disclosed early Monday that a manned spacecraft launched on Saturday was forced to abort its mission and return to earth.

Tass, the official Soviet press agency, said the two astronauts aboard the Soyuz craft were "feeling well" after a search and rescue unit found them in western Siberia. The language of the Tass report implied strongly that neither Vasily Lazarev nor Oleg Makarov, had been injured in the emergency. It was the latest in a series of mishaps that has plagued the Soviet space program in recent years.

Describing the emergency return to earth, Tass said, "The descent module soft-landed southwest of the town of Gorno-Altai in western Siberia."

Tass did not give the precise time of the launching nor of the emergency landing, although the landing presumably took place some time on Sunday. The mission of the flight was described as "joint experiments" between the Soyuz craft and the orbital space station Salyut 4, which was launched Dec. 26.

Tass said the Soyuz was launched on a carrier rocket and, "On the third stretch, the parameters of the carrier rockets movement deviated from the preset values and an automatic device produced the command to discontinue the flight under the program and detach the space ship for return to earth."

Tass gave no further details on the precise nature of the malfunctioning and did not elaborate on the details of the mission.

As is usual with Soviet space missions, there was no advance notification that the Soyuz craft would be launched. The Tass dispatch giving the news was a 15-line story entitled "Flight Control Center Reports."

The Soyuz mission that failed was not believed to have been directly related to the joint Soviet-American space linkup scheduled for next July. Officials and astronauts from the American team that will participate in the July mission were scheduled to arrive in Moscow for a visit late Monday. But the Americans were not expected to travel to the Soviet space center in Baikonur, in Soviet Central Asia.

Palestinians Say Israelis Drew Fire

By The Associated Press
Palestinian guerrillas claimed they traded fire Sunday with a helicopter-borne Israeli force trying to set up fortifications one mile inside Lebanon's southern border. Israeli officials reported Arab shellings but denied any incursion into Lebanon.

No casualties were reported by either side.

The Palestinian news agency said the action took place at Ruweisat Hill, which is close to Kfar Shuba, a border village leveled by Israeli artillery and demolition squads last January.

The hill is not inhabited and Kfar Shuba has been deserted by its 1,200 residents. The Palestinians say efforts by the Lebanese government to rebuild the village have been marred by Israeli shelling.

Israeli military sources said Arab gunners inside Lebanon fired mortar shells on Israeli civilians and soldiers in two separate incidents Sunday, but Israel did not return fire.

The sources said Lebanese troops or Palestinian guerrillas shelled civilians working on a security fence that stretches across the length of the 70-mile-long border.

Other rounds were aimed at an Israeli patrol along the Har Dov sector near Mt. Hermon, the sources said.

In other Middle East developments:

—The leader of a 25-man U.S. congressional delegation to Israel said the creation of a Palestinian state in the Middle East is a problem for the Arab nations to solve. Speaking to newsmen at Ben Gurion airport at the end of a Middle East fact-finding mission, Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said Israel "should not take part in creating" a Palestinian state because "it is a purely Arab problem." He added that there was a place for such a state but declined to specify where it should be.

—An Israeli military tribunal sentenced a Gaza district court judge to 12 years imprisonment for conspiring to attack Israeli military personnel and Arabs he believed were collaborating with the Israelis. The judge, Saied

Abdel Hadi el-Qidrah, had been on the bench for 19 years, and the sentence was double what the prosecution asked for.

—Guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat told the Caru magazine Rose el Youssef that Israel would use any resumption of the Geneva peace talks for more "maneuvers" Israel is determined to carry on the war and the Arabs must follow the example of the Vietnamese who fought their most famous battle while engaged in negotiations in Paris.

—U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim awarded the U.N. gold medal for peace to Algerian President Houari Boumedienne in Algiers on Saturday night. Waldheim said the medal was for Boumedienne's personal efforts for peace, but mentioned no specifics.

Retirement Planning Sessions Scheduled

"Are You Prepared for the Good Life?" will be the theme of a seven-week retirement planning program for persons age 50 and older.

The sessions will be held 7-9 p.m. every Tuesday from April 8 through May 20 in the Stuart Room of the YMCA, 1432 N. according to Bob Varela, coordinator of educational services for the agency at the Southeast Community College.

Professional persons and specialists will discuss purposes of retirement planning and available choices, suggestions for the "good life," maintaining physical and mental health, personal fulfillment in leisure time, housing needs, income and expenses, including Social Security information, and legal affairs such as wills, contracts and insurance.

Varela said several films will be shown and informative literature will be available. He recommended that persons interested in the sessions bring their spouses, since both will be concerned with the same events in their retirement years. The fee is $15 for all seven sessions; spouses may attend free.

Diabetics Group To Reorganize

A reorganization meeting for a teenage diabetic group will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the west meeting room of Bryan Memorial Hospital.

Diabetic youth of junior high and high school age who are interested in possible monthly social meetings and activities are invited to attend, according to

Four sponsors for the group will be Jordan Kominsky, Connie Smith, Kathy Miller and Ruth Haase.

Plans will be discussed for the annual Camp Floyd Rogers for diabetic children, to be held June 15-28. It will be at the Gene Eppley Camp near Bellevue.

Soviet Spaceship Aborts Mission

©The New York Times

Moscow — The Soviet Union disclosed early Monday that a manned spacecraft launched on Saturday was forced to abort its mission and return to earth.

Tass, the official Soviet press agency, said the two astronauts aboard the Soyuz craft were "feeling well" after a search and rescue unit found them in western Siberia. The language of the Tass report implied strongly that neither Vasily Lazarev nor Oleg Makarov, had been injured in the emergency. It was the latest in a series of mishaps that has plagued the Soviet space program in recent years.

Describing the emergency return to earth, Tass said, "The descent module soft-landed southwest of the town of Gorno-Altai in western Siberia."

Tass did not give the precise time of the launching nor of the emergency landing, although the landing presumably took place some time on Sunday. The mission of the flight was described as "joint experiments" between the Soyuz craft and the orbital space station Salyut 4, which was launched Dec. 26.

Tass said the Soyuz was launched on a carrier rocket and, "On the third stretch, the parameters of the carrier rockets movement deviated from the preset values and an automatic device produced the command to discontinue the flight under the program and detach the space ship for return to earth."

Tass gave no further details on the precise nature of the malfunctioning and did not elaborate on the details of the mission.

As is usual with Soviet space missions, there was no advance notification that the Soyuz craft would be launched. The Tass dispatch giving the news was a 15-line story entitled "Flight Control Center Reports."

The Soyuz mission that failed was not believed to have been directly related to the joint Soviet-American space linkup scheduled for next July. Officials and astronauts from the American team that will participate in the July mission were scheduled to arrive in Moscow for a visit late Monday. But the Americans were not expected to travel to the Soviet space center in Baikonur, in Soviet Central Asia.

Palestinians Say Israelis Drew Fire

By The Associated Press
Palestinian guerrillas claimed they traded fire Sunday with a helicopter-borne Israeli force trying to set up fortifications one mile inside Lebanon's southern border. Israeli officials reported Arab shellings but denied any incursion into Lebanon.

No casualties were reported by either side.

The Palestinian news agency said the action took place at Ruweisat Hill, which is close to Kfar Shuba, a border village leveled by Israeli artillery and demolition squads last January. The hill is not inhabited and Kfar Shuba has been deserted by its 1,200 residents. The Palestinians say efforts by the Lebanese government to rebuild the village have been marred by Israeli shelling.

Israeli military sources said Arab gunners inside Lebanon fired mortar shells on Israeli civilians and soldiers in two separate incidents Sunday, but Israel did not return fire.

The sources said Lebanese troops or Palestinian guerrillas shelled civilians working on a security fence that stretches across the length of the 70-mile-long border.

Other rounds were aimed at an Israeli patrol along the Har Dov sector near Mt. Hermon, the sources said.

In other Middle East developments:

—The leader of a 25-man U.S. congressional delegation to Israel said the creation of a Palestinian state in the Middle East is a problem for the Arab nations to solve. Speaking to newsmen at Ben Gurion airport at the end of a Middle East fact finding mission, Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said Israel "should not take part in creating" a Palestinian state because "it is a purely Arab problem." He added that there was a place for such a state but declined to specify where it should be.

—An Israeli military tribunal sentenced a Gaza district court judge to 12 years imprisonment for conspiring to attack Israeli military personnel and Arabs he believed were collaborating with the Israelis. The judge, Saleh

Abdel Hadi el-Qidrah, had been on the bench for 19 years, and the sentence was double what the prosecution asked for.

—Guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat told the Cairo magazine Rose el Youssef that Israel would use any resumption of the Geneva peace talks for more "maneuvers. Israel is determined to carry on the war and the Arabs must follow the example of the Vietnamese who fought their most famous battle while engaged in negotiations in Paris."

—U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim awarded the U.N. gold medal for peace to Algerian President Houari Boumedienne in Algiers on Saturday night. Waldheim said the medal was for Boumedienne's personal efforts for peace, but mentioned no specifics.

Teacher Group Selects Lichty To Be President

Omaha (AP)—The Nebraska State Education Association has elected Dennis Lichty, a Plainville teacher, as president. His term starts in October of 1976.

The NSEA at a weekend meeting approved a resolution that Boys Town teachers be given the same rights as public school teachers.

The resolution was submitted by the Boys Town Education Association as a result of a February announcement by Boys Town officials that they would not rehire 19 teachers next year due to declining enrollment.

The resolution and others were voted on by about 450 delegates attending the annual NSEA convention which concluded Saturday.

The delegates also approved a resolution urging teachers to work with school boards and school administrators in toughening school policies governing student behavior.

Retirement Planning Sessions Scheduled

"Are You Prepared for the Good Life?" will be the theme of a seven-week retirement planning program for persons age 50 and older.

The sessions will be held 7-9 p.m. every Tuesday from April 8 through May 20 in the Stuart Room of the YMCA, 1432 N. according to Bob Varela, coordinator of educational services for the aging at the Southeast Community College.

Professional persons and specialists will discuss purposes of retirement planning and available choices, suggestions for the "good life," maintaining physical and mental health, personal fulfillment in leisure time, housing needs; income and expenses, including Social Security information; and legal affairs such as wills, contracts and insurance.

Varela said several films will be shown and informative literature will be available. He recommended that persons interested in the sessions bring their spouses, since both will be concerned with the same events in their retirement years. The fee is $15 for all seven sessions; spouses may attend free.

Diabetics Group To Reorganize

A reorganization meeting for a teenage diabetic group will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the west meeting room of Bryan Memorial Hospital.

Diabetic youth of junior high and high school age who are interested in possible monthly social meetings and activities are invited to attend, according to

Mrs. Robert L. Watts. Four sponsors for the group will be Jordan Kominsky, Connie Smith, Kathy Miller and Ruth Haase.

Plans will be discussed for the annual Camp Floyd Rogers for diabetic children, to be held June 15-28. It will be at the Gene Eppley Camp near Bellevue.

Soviet Missile Stockpile Is Reported In Somalia

•The New York Times

New York — Defense Department officials say the Soviet Union is stockpiling long-range guided missiles in East Africa in a large newly built naval-support installation at Berbera, Somalia.

These so-called cruise missiles are believed intended for the surface ships and submarines of the Soviet squadron deployed in the Indian Ocean. The squadron, whose strength is said to vary from 10 to 15 ships, is active in the Arabian Sea, the section of the Indian Ocean east of the entrance to the Persian Gulf.

Now that the Soviet squadron is assured of rapid resupplying of its cruise missiles, a military analyst said, the Russians and their Arab friends from Iraq to southern Yemen could in an international crisis, control the exits from the Persian Gulf and from the Suez Canal-Red Sea supply lines. The missiles are believed to range from the SSC1, with a range of 200 miles, to the SSN5 with a range of 700 miles.

Prewar Situation

The death of King Faisal, the strongly anti-Communist ruler of Saudi Arabia, the steady flow of sophisticated Soviet weapons to Iraq, Syria and Egypt and the breakdown of negotiations between Israel and Egypt have led some officials to talk of a prewar, rather than a postwar, situation.

These officials say that although there may be diplomatic advantages in slowing American arms shipments to Israel, the military fact is that Israel is the only Middle Eastern country with forces powerful enough to balance Arab strength and deter the Russians.

Military sources said that American weapons now being withheld from Israel, evidently to influence her government to resume negotiations with Egypt, are those most necessary to a military balance.

One is the Lance surface-to-surface missile, whose sale to Israel has been approved by Congress. The Lance can be armed with either a conventional or a nuclear warhead and has a range of well over 130 miles, which, to some extent, would balance the longer-range SCUD-B missiles that the Soviet Union is furnishing to Egypt and Syria.

The acquisition of the Lance is said to be more immediately important to Israel than the purchase of the Air Force's F15 Eagle, an ultramodern fighter designed to win quick air superiority over a battlefield.

Negotiations Suspended

However, a team of Israeli pilots and aeronautics experts, on the way to the United States to evaluate the F15 for combat in the Middle East, was turned back and negotiations on the sale of the fighter have been suspended.

The Ford administration has also reportedly discouraged a visit to Washington by Shimon Peres, Israel's minister of defense, who was expected to push for early delivery of the Lance and for progress toward a deal for a high-performance fighter aircraft.

Critics of the situation within the Defense Department argue that if the United States denies arms to Israel, while the Soviet Union continues to ship advanced weapons systems to Arab countries and to build up its own military presence in the area, it would create an awkward military situation for both Israel and the United States in the event of another Arab-Israeli war.

Embargo Expected

American planners say they assume there would be a blockade of Israel and a new oil embargo in another war.

A senior official put the question: What would happen if the Iranians defied the blockade and attempted to ship oil to Israel, and the Soviet squadron closed the Persian Gulf route to Iranian or other tankers intended for Israel?

The Russians, the official insisted, have the military strength "on the spot" to enforce a blockade.

Saudi Political Prisoners Get Amnesty From Khaled

Kuwait (AP)—King Khaled of Saudi Arabia issued a royal decree Sunday granting amnesty to all political prisoners, including those sentenced to death in absentia, the Saudi state radio reported.

No mention was made in the broadcast to Prince Faisal Ibn Muead, 27, who assassinated King Faisal during a religious ceremony at the royal palace in Riyadh March 25.

The radio interrupted regular programs to read the decree. Saudi citizens who fled the kingdom to escape death sentences were urged to return home at once.

The radio said the decree was in line with decisions taken earlier by the late King Faisal.

The broadcast monitored here added that the move was made "in view of the fact that several convicts amnestied by the late monarch have returned from abroad and have become good elements sincerely serving their homeland and religion."

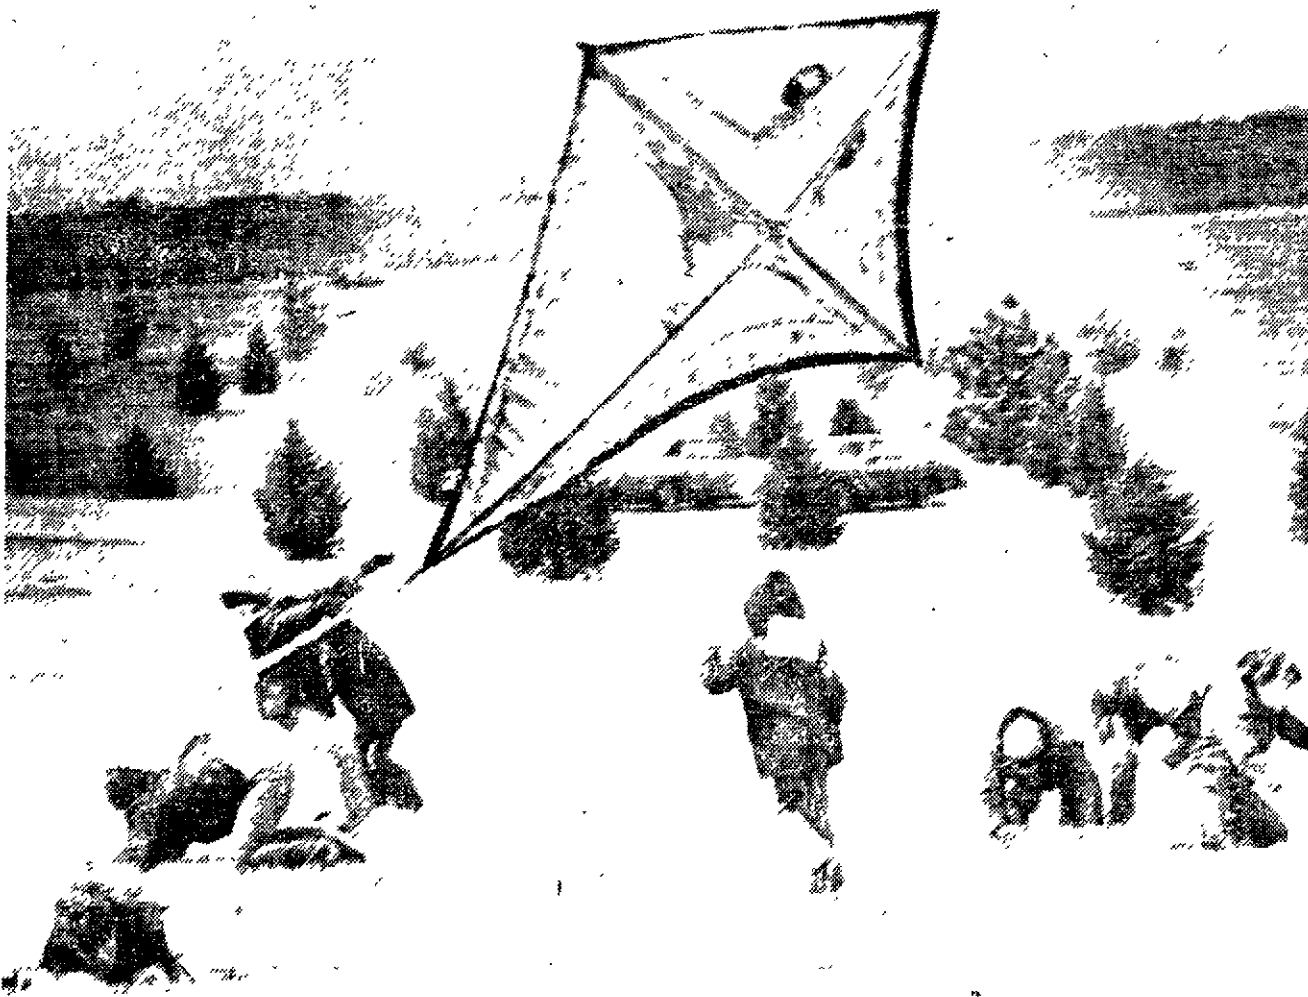

There was no indication of how many prisoners would receive amnesty.

Prince Faisal was being held in Riyadh pending trial before a religious court for shooting his uncle to death. Saudi sources said that if found guilty, the prince could be beheaded in public on a Friday after the traditional Islamic group prayer.

Fierce Winds Knocked Out Big Ones

Fierce, gusty winds knocked some big ones out of the sixth annual Kite Flying Contest Sunday on the slopes south of Holmes Lake.

Bill Kloefkorn, a perennial winner in the Lincoln Recreation Department-sponsored event, said his nine-by-nine-foot red, white and blue bicentennial kite "did fine for 12.5 minutes."

Then it "fell like a shot duck."

It took some pioneer efforts for the Kelley boys to hold down their 12-by-10-foot diamond kite. Todd Kelley's creation won the largest kite adult division for kites 16 years of age and older.

It had heavy polyethylene plastic over oak bows, with 400-pound test nylon cord, he explained. And a knotted pant drop cloth for a tail, added his father, Harold Kelley of 7621 Englewood Drive.

Already the Kelleys' were thinking bigger and better for next year.

"Better get a telephone pole to hold it down," boasted Grandpa Kelley.

But not all was bigness. The 300 contest watchers saw a lot more homemade, decorated kites, according to Bette Larson, Recreation Department supervisor.

Two youngsters, John and Tammy Shaw, had worked to sew a startled-looking yellow lion with a gathered brown material mane on their small kite.

Barry and Barbara Albers, 3007 S 11th, were flying fish kites, made of nothing stronger than tissue paper and glue with wire at the fish's mouth, flying from a bamboo pole. And they stayed intact, all through the afternoon.

Trophies were awarded to the following first- and second-place winners.

YOUTH DIVISION
Altitude Contest — Danny Ernst, Jenny Amen

Regional Handgun Control Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi Sunday night proposed a regional approach to controlling handguns which he said "avoids more drastic nationwide measures such as registration and licensing."

Levi outlined the proposal, which he said is under consideration at the Justice Department, in a speech before the Law Enforcement Executives Narcotics Conference.

"Preliminarily, we have discussed a mechanism which would be set into operation either by a local violent crime rate significantly higher than the national average or by a high local violent crime rate coupled with a significant increase in the local rate of violent crime over the course of a year," Levi said.

For instance, he said, the system might provide federal controls in a local area if its violent crime rate was either

20% higher than the national average or both 10% higher than the national average and 5% higher than the previous year's local rate.

Under these assumptions, a federal gun law designed to go into effect in limited geographic areas would have applied in 1972 in 62 Standard Metropolitan Areas — areas including a central city with a population of 50,000 or more and surrounding political subdivisions, he said.

"In areas where the violent crime rate has reached the critical level, this proposal would ban the possession of handguns outside the home or place of business," Levi said.

It would apply to all handguns, not only "Saturday night specials," he said.

It would ban the sale or transfer of handguns and handgun ammunition in the relevant metropolitan areas and also prohibit importing handguns into the metropolitan area, except in certain circumstances in which guns are imported for the use of law enforcement.

In the critical crime areas an owner of a handgun would be required to obtain a special permit of extremely limited duration if he wanted to transport his weapon outside his home or business for a legitimate reason, Levi said.

The proposal would allow handguns to be used at target shooting clubs if they were kept in secure arsenals at the clubs, he said.

"The regional approach I am outlining avoids more drastic nationwide measures such as registration and licensing, but it strikes no less than they do at the illegal commerce in weapons," Levi said.

'Unisex' Blouses, Sweat Shirts To Be Recalled; Fire Test Failed

Washington (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission Sunday announced a recall of thousands of "unisex" blouses and sweat shirts which it said do not meet flame proof safety standards.

In an unusual move, the agency also said the importer of the garments has agreed to go on television throughout the country to warn consumers of the problem, and to take out ads in newspapers and in two nationally circulated "youth market" magazines as well.

The products involved were described as brushed cotton blouses and sweat shirts, designed to be worn by either men or women, and manufactured in six styles. They were imported by Michael Milea and Peter Sinclair Ltd. of New York, and sold nationwide as part of that firm's 1974 summer and fall line, the commission said.

The garments have a woven label which carries the Milea-Sinclair names, a commission spokesman said, but consumers will have difficulty identifying which garments are not in compliance with the flame proof laws because no style numbers are carried.

"Consumers who believe they have one of the non-complying garments should write to Milea-Sinclair at 475 Park Ave. South,

New York, N.Y., 10016, or telephone 212-889-0200," the agency announcement said.

Under a consent agreement reached with the firm, the importer will distribute film clips talking about the problem to no less than 300 television stations, along with a cover letter explaining that the warnings should be carried as a public service. The same will go for ad mat forms to be distributed to no less than 300 publications across the nation.

"In addition, the company has agreed to pay for space in two nationally circulated magazines directed at the youth market to alert purchasers of the recall,"

Negotiations Suspended

However, a team of Israeli pilots and aeronautics experts, on the way to the United States to evaluate the F15 for combat in the Middle East, was turned back and negotiations on the sale of the fighter have been suspended.

The Ford administration has also reportedly discouraged a visit to Washington by Shimon Peres, Israel's minister of defense, who was expected to push for early delivery of the Lance and for progress toward a deal for a high-performance fighter aircraft.

Critics of the situation within the Defense Department argue that if the United States denies arms to Israel, while the Soviet Union continues to ship advanced weapons systems to Arab countries and to build up its own military presence in the area, it would create an awkward military situation for both Israel and the United States in the event of another Arab-Israeli war.

Embargo Expected

American planners say they assume there would be a blockade of Israel and a new oil embargo in another war.

A senior official put the question: What would happen if the Iranians defied the blockade and attempted to ship oil to Israel, and the Soviet squadron closed the Persian Gulf route to Iranian or other tankers intended for Israel?

The Russians, the official insisted, have the military strength "on the spot" to enforce a blockade.

Saudi Political Prisoners Get Amnesty From Khaled

Kuwait (AP)—King Khaled of Saudi Arabia issued a royal decree Sunday granting amnesty to all political prisoners, including those sentenced to death in absentia, the Saudi state radio reported.

No mention was made in the broadcast to Prince Faisal Ibn Mu'ad, 27, who assassinated King Faisal during a religious ceremony at the royal palace in Riyadh March 25.

The radio interrupted regular programs to read the decree. Saudi citizens who fled the kingdom to escape death sentences were urged to return home at once.

The radio said the decree was in line with decisions taken earlier by the late King Faisal.

The broadcast monitored here added that the move was made "in view of the fact that several convicts amnestied by the late monarch have returned from abroad and have become good elements sincerely serving their homeland and religion."

There was no indication of how many prisoners would receive amnesty.

Prince Faisal was being held in Riyadh pending trial before a religious court for shooting his uncle to death. Saudi sources said that if found guilty, the prince could be beheaded in public on a Friday after the traditional Islamic group prayer.

Fierce Winds Knocked Out Big Ones

Fierce, gusty winds knocked some big ones out of the sixth annual Kite Flying Contest Sunday on the slopes south of Holmes Lake.

Bill Kloefkorn, a perennial winner in the Lincoln Recreation Department-sponsored event, said his nine-by-nine-foot red, white and blue bicentennial kite "did fine for 12.5 minutes."

Then it "fell like a shot duck."

It took some pioneer efforts for the Kelley boys to hold down their 12-by-10-foot diamond kite. Todd Kelley's creation won the largest kite adult division for kitists 16 years of age and older.

It had heavy polyethylene plastic over oak bows, with 400-pound test nylon cord, he explained. And a knotted paint drop cloth for a tail, added his father, Harold Kelley of 7621 Englewood Drive.

Already the Kelleys' were thinking bigger and better for next year.

"Better get a telephone pole to hold it down," boasted Grandpa Kelley.

But not all was bigness. The 300 contest watchers saw a lot more homemade, decorated kites, according to Bette Larson, Recreation Department supervisor.

Two youngsters, John and Tammy Shaw, had worked to sew a startled-looking yellow lion with a gathered brown material mane on their small kite.

Barry and Barbara Albers, 3007 S. 11th, were flying fish kites, made of nothing stronger than tissue paper and glue with wire at the fish's mouth, flying from a bamboo pole. And they stayed intact, all through the afternoon.

Trophies were awarded to the following first- and second-place winners:

Altitude Contest — Danny Ernst, Jenny Amen.

Steadiest Bow Kite — Todd Kelley, Dan Olivetti

Strongest Puller — Danny Ernst, John Shaw.

Best Decorated Kite — Tracy Blakenship, John Shaw.

Best Box Kite — Jim Weitzel, David Leker.

Most Unique — Tammy Shaw, Jim Weitzel.

Smallest Kite — Mike Alley, Elizabeth Carillo.

Largest Kite — Pam Rouse, Adolph Havlap.

Special Event — Elizabeth Carillo, Pam Rouse.

ADULT DIVISION

Altitude Contest — Philip Kranc, Stuart Tryon.

Steadiest Bow Kite — Charles Stubblefield, Randy Reffert.

Strongest Puller — Jerry Velder, Charles Stubblefield.

Best Decorated Kite — Liz Herrmann, Barbara Albers.

Best Box Kite — Marty Klein, Bob Gantt.

Largest Kite — Todd Kelley, Marty Klein.

Smallest Kite — Bob Burbank, Doris Dymuck.

Regional Handgun Control Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi Sunday night proposed a regional approach to controlling handguns which he said "avoids more drastic nationwide measures such as registration and licensing."

Levi outlined the proposal, which he said is under consideration at the Justice Department, in a speech before the Law Enforcement Executives Narcotics Conference.

"Preliminarily, we have discussed a mechanism which would be set into operation either by a local violent crime rate significantly higher than the national average or by a high local violent crime rate coupled with a significant increase in the local rate of violent crime over the course of a year," Levi said.

For instance, he said, the system might provide federal controls in a local area if its violent crime rate was either

20% higher than the national average or both 10% higher than the national average and 5% higher than the previous year's local rate.

Under these assumptions, a federal gun law designed to go into effect in limited geographic areas would have applied in 1972 in 62 Standard Metropolitan Areas — areas including a central city with a population of 50,000 or more and surrounding political subdivisions, he said.

"In areas where the violent crime rate has reached the critical level, this proposal would ban the possession of handguns outside the home or place of business," Levi said.

It would apply to all handguns, not only "Saturday night specials," he said.

It would ban the sale or transfer of handguns and handgun ammunition in the relevant metropolitan areas and also prohibit importing handguns into the metropolitan area, except in certain circumstances in which guns are imported for the use of law enforcement.

In the critical crime areas an owner of a handgun would be required to obtain a special permit of extremely limited duration if he wanted to transport his weapon outside his home or business for a legitimate reason, Levi said.

The proposal would allow handguns to be used at target shooting clubs if they were kept in secure arsenals at the clubs, he said.

"The regional approach I am outlining avoids more drastic nationwide measures such as registration and licensing, but it strikes no less than they do at the illegal commerce in weapons," Levi said.

'Unisex' Blouses, Sweat Shirts To Be Recalled; Fire Test Failed

Washington (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission Sunday announced a recall of thousands of "unisex" blouses and sweat shirts which it said do not meet flame proof safety standards.

In an unusual move, the agency also said the importer of the garments has agreed to go on television throughout the country to warn consumers of the problem, and to take out ads in newspapers and in two nationally circulated "youth market" magazines as well.

The products involved were described as brushed cotton blouses and sweat shirts, designed to be worn by either men or women, and manufactured in six styles. They were imported by Michael Milea and Peter Sinclair Ltd. of New York, and sold nationwide as part of that firm's 1974 summer and fall line, the commission said.

The garments have a woven label which carries the Milea-Sinclair names, a commission spokesman said, but consumers will have difficulty identifying which garments are not in compliance with the flame proof laws because no style numbers are carried.

"Consumers who believe they have one of the non-complying garments should write to Milea-Sinclair at 475 Park Ave. South,

New York, N.Y., 10016, or telephone 212-889-0200," the agency announcement said.

Under a consent agreement reached with the firm, the importer will distribute film clips talking about the problem to no less than 300 television stations, along with a cover letter explaining that the warnings should be carried as a public service. The same will go for ad mat forms to be distributed to no less than 300 publications across the nation.

In addition, the company has agreed to pay for space in two nationally circulated magazines directed at the youth market to alert purchasers of the recall."

New LCS Chief 'Becoming Acquainted'

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

As Bill Putnam and his wife drove to Lincoln he felt like he was "on top of the world."

He still does.

The new executive director of Lincoln Community Services didn't feel the emptiness that afflicts many persons who relocate. He had just left his home and job in Durham, N. C.

Tuesday was his first day on the job here. He has all the enthusiasm of a newcomer and is taking pains to meet his staff, LCS board members and persons in the community.

But the exercise is far from painful for Putnam.

He is enjoying becoming acquainted with Lincoln.

He's high on the city.

Putnam asks questions a mile a minute, his southern drawl hanging in the air. He is anxious to meet people, learn about the city, partake of what it has to offer.

Putnam succeeded John Goessman, former LCS executive director, who resigned Jan. 31 to head up the United Way agency in Winston-Salem, N. C. Putnam comes here from similar organizations in both North and South Carolina.

He has had individual conferences with employees, zeroing in on how each employee defines his or her job and what is being done in the various areas of the agency. LCS serves as the community's comprehensive fund-raising, allocating and planning arm for some 26 local social and health organizations.

Putnam also spent much of his first week calling on people who have a direct impact on these agencies — community leaders and agency executives.

Next week he will assess his findings. But Putnam doesn't foresee any monumental changes in LCS.

"There is a pride in LCS," he said, already in shirtsleeves, just one sign of his rapidly developing comfort in the newly-acquired office.

"The figures I have looked at show LCS has done a good job," he said. "You just don't tamper with things that are good." In the past four years the United Fund campaign here has grown 26% to nearly $1.4 million for 1975.

He sees LCS's role as "the third party between the user and the giver" — between those who use the funds raised to provide community services and those who contribute the dollars so the agencies can function.

But that involves more than doling out the cash. Along with that comes the responsibility of making the agencies more accountable, helping them "tell their story better," he said.

"For years (they were) able to say, 'Forgive our omissions and transgressions because we are charity.'"

But with revenue sharing dollars pouring into community service-delivery agencies these days, the line has become blurred in the public's eye, he said.

More often than not, the private, charitable, voluntary sector serves as the catalyst, Putnam said, making the first waves in such areas as mental retardation and mental health. When the worth of those activities is proven, tax dollars begin flowing in.

But being in at the ground level has its problems, too.

"We stumble a lot. We make mistakes. But we recognize it (the mistake) quickly."

And the future?

"Good times, I hope," drawled the enthusiastic newcomer as he shifted in his new executive director's chair.

PUTNAM ... rapidly becoming comfortable.

States Can't Use All Unfrozen Road Cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — States have claimed less than one-fifth of the $2 billion in impounded highway funds released by President Ford in February as an antirecession move. Most has gone to states with lower than average unemployment rates.

Federal Highway Administration records show that as of March 31, the latest figures available, only 16 states had been able to use the newly freed funds. Their added spending totaled $356.6 million.

An Associated Press survey of state highway departments and Highway Administration records indicate several other states could pick up some of the money in coming weeks. Ten could start in a few weeks. Several others are farther back in their spending plans but have costly projects nearly ready for approval.

President Ford, in announcing Feb. 11 that he was releasing the highway funds to combat rising unemployment and the current recession, estimated the money would create about 125,000 new jobs.

Of the 16 states that so far have received funding, 11 had seasonally unadjusted unemployment rates below 8 percent in January. And two of the 11 — Kansas and Iowa — had the lowest and second lowest unemployment rates in the nation, according to preliminary Labor Department figures.

The 11 states collected $255.5 million. The other five states, with unemployment ranging from 8.5 percent to 11.4 percent, collected $101.1 million.

Latest national unemployment figures are 8.7 percent.

The reasons the bulk of the new money has gone to states with lower unemployment are diverse and complicated.

Many states with high unemployment don't have enough state funds to meet matching requirements on federal-state highway projects. Other states were caught by surprise and had no plans for highway programs ready to submit for approval.

Others had not spent the bulk of their previous allotment because of various factors. Many states, for example, traditionally wait until the end of winter to grant new contracts so that the work can begin in early spring and summer.

Congress originally authorized federal spending of $6.1 billion on highway programs in fiscal 1975 but the President impounded $1.5 billion of that. This raised the impoundment total to $11.1 billion. Each state was told how much of its 1975 allocation it could spend and how much was impounded.

When Ford announced he was releasing the $2 billion, the Highway Administration said it could dole out the new funds on a first-come, first-served basis. It also said it would let states draw on their fiscal year 1976 allocation if they had enough projects ready to go to exhaust their 1975 funding.

Both moves were designed to get the money into the economy as quickly as possible. However,

TOP FLOOR ROOM ... damaged by NU dormitory fire.

Fire Hits Dorm Room

An estimated 250 residents of the 10-story University of Nebraska Smith Hall Dormitory were evacuated Sunday when a fire broke out on the top floor of the structure.

No injuries were reported, and Lincoln firemen extinguished the blaze without incident. The occupant of the room, Teresa Hesh, 18, a freshman from rural Crete, was home for the weekend, authorities said.

Deputy State Fire Marshal Don Rixtein theorized an electrical malfunction in a clock radio in the room triggered the fire. He said the room was locked when the fire was discovered by students on the floor at 7:21 a.m.

The entire room sustained heavy smoke damage, while a desk, shelves and drapes were damaged by fire.

Rixtein said matches and other combustibles were stored near the radio.

Education Cost Hikes Vary From 8 To 12%

The costs of attending college will go up almost 12% at public four-year institutions next fall and more than 8% at private institutions, according to a survey of 2,400 schools reported in "The Chronicle of Higher Education."

Total costs will go up an average of 8% for students who live on campus and 6% for those who commute from home, the report said. Total costs will average $3,594 for students living on campus, and $3,186 for commuters.

The survey was conducted by the College Scholarship Service of the College Entrance Examination Board.

By next fall, total costs for students living on campus at public four-year institutions will have risen 50.3% since 1971, up from $1,783 to $2,697 in 1975-76.

At private four-year colleges, total costs will have risen 47.4% for students who live on campus, up from $2,974 in 1970-71 to $4,391 in 1975-76.

The biggest increase of all will have been in costs for commuting students at private two-year institutions. They have risen 86.5%, from $1,834 in 1970-71 to $3,421 in 1975-76.

The largest one-year increase in total costs will take place at public institutions, where both commuters and students living on campus will face increases of almost 12% this fall, the survey found.

However, the biggest increase in tuition and fees alone will occur at private four-year schools, up 8% from 1974-75.

The service divided the total costs of going to college into five parts: Tuition and fees, transportation, personal costs, room and board, and books and supplies. Of the five, tuition and fees will vary the most, from an average of $301 at two-year public institutions to $2,240 at private, four-year schools.

The other four parts will vary less than $100 each among the different types of colleges and universities.

Special Education Bills Report To Be Presented

The State Board of Education will hear a report Friday on LB403 and other legislation related to special education programs for handicapped children in Nebraska.

The board will begin with a work session at 8 a.m., to discuss LB403 rules and regulations, a management information systems study, other legislation, and to review public agenda items for the 10:30 a.m. official meeting.

Both sessions will be at the Nebraska School for the Deaf, 3223 N. 45th in Omaha.

Formal agenda items include approval to set hearings May 9 for the state plan on school approval and for teacher standards of competent professional performance.

Preliminary plans for the Diagnostic Resource Center at Cozad will be submitted for review and approval and go-ahead will be sought for an "exemplary project" with the Youth Development Center at Kearney.

Other items for board approval include a research dissemination program proposal to the National Institute of Education, and a $28,286 agreement for television and related production services for 14 programs in "Survival Economics."

Board members will hear reports on procedures involved in licensing private vocational schools, Colorado audit exceptions in vocational rehabilitation that relate to Nebraska, and a progress report on the State Department of Education building lease.

New LCS Chief 'Becoming Acquainted'

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

As Bill Putnam and his wife drove to Lincoln he felt like he was "on top of the world."

He still does.

The new executive director of Lincoln Community Services didn't feel the emptiness that afflicts many persons who relocate. He had just left his home and job in Durham, N. C.

Tuesday was his first day on the job here. He has all the enthusiasm of a newcomer and is taking pains to meet his staff, LCS board members and persons in the community.

But the exercise is far from painful for Putnam.

He is enjoying becoming acquainted with Lincoln.

He's high on the city.

Putnam asks questions a mile a minute, his southern drawl hanging in the air. He is anxious to meet people, learn about the city, partake of what it has to offer.

Putnam succeeded John Goessman, former LCS executive director, who resigned Jan. 31 to head up the United Way agency in Winston-Salem, N. C. Putnam comes here from similar organizations in both North and South Carolina.

He has had individual conferences with employees, zeroing in on how each employee defines his or her job and what is being done in the various areas of the agency. LCS serves as the community's comprehensive fund-raising, allocating and planning arm for some 26 local social and health organizations.

Putnam also spent much of his first week calling on people who have a direct impact on these agencies — community leaders and agency executives.

Next week he will assess his findings.

But Putnam doesn't foresee any monumental changes in LCS.

"There is a pride in LCS," he said, already in shirtsleeves, just one sign of his rapidly developing comfort in the newly-acquired office.

"The figures I have looked at show LCS has done a good job," he said. "You just don't tamper with things that are good." In the past four years the United Fund campaign here has grown 26% to nearly $1.4 million for 1975.

He sees LCS's role as "the third party between the user and the giver" — between those who use the funds raised to provide community services and those who contribute the dollars so the agencies can function.

But that involves more than doling out the cash. Along with that comes the responsibility of making the agencies more accountable, helping them "tell their story better," he said.

"For years (they were) able to say, 'Forgive our omissions and transgressions because we are charity.'"

But with revenue sharing dollars pouring into community service-delivery agencies these days, the line has become blurred in the public's eye, he said.

More often than not, the private, charitable, voluntary sector serves as the catalyst, Putnam said, making the first waves in such areas as mental retardation and mental health. When the worth of those activities is proven, tax dollars begin flowing in.

But being in at the ground level has its problems, too.

"We stumble a lot. We make mistakes. But we recognize it (the mistake) quickly."

And the future?

"Good times, I hope," drawled the enthusiastic newcomer as he shifted in his new executive director's chair.

PUTNAM . . . rapidly becoming comfortable.

States Can't Use All Unfrozen Road Cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — States have claimed less than one-fifth of the $2 billion in impounded highway funds released by President Ford in February as an anti-recession move. Most have gone to states with lower than average unemployment rates.

Federal Highway Administration records show that as of March 31, the latest figures available, only 16 states had been able to use the newly freed funds. Their added spending totaled $356.6 million.

An Associated Press survey of state highway departments and Highway Administration records indicate several other states could pick up some of the money in coming weeks. Ten could start in a few weeks. Several others are farther back in their spending plans but have costly projects nearly ready for approval.

President Ford, in announcing Feb. 11 that he was releasing the highway funds to combat rising unemployment and the current recession, estimated the money would create about 125,000 new jobs.

Of the 16 states that so far have received funding, 11 had seasonally unadjusted unemployment rates below 8 per cent in January. And two of the 11 — Kansas and Iowa — had the lowest and second lowest unemployment rates in the nation, according to preliminary Labor Department figures.

The 11 states collected $255.5 million. The other five states, with unemployment ranging from 8.5 per cent to 11.4 per cent, collected $101.1 million.

Latest national unemployment figures are 8.7 per cent.

The reasons the bulk of the new money has gone to states with lower unemployment are diverse and complicated.

Many states with high unemployment don't have enough state funds to meet matching requirements on federal-state highway projects. Other states were caught by surprise and had no plans for highway programs ready to submit for approval.

Others had not spent the bulk of their previous allotment because of various factors. Many states, for example, traditionally wait until the end of winter to grant new contracts so that the work can begin in early spring and summer.

Congress originally authorized federal spending of $6.1 billion on highway programs in fiscal 1975 but the President impounded $1.5 billion of that. This raised the impoundment total to $11.1 billion. Each state was told how much of its 1975 allocation it could spend and how much was impounded.

When Ford announced he was releasing the $2 billion, the Highway Administration said it could dole out the new funds on a first come, first served basis. It also said it would let states draw on their fiscal year 1976 allocation if they had enough projects ready to go to exhaust their 1975 funding.

Both moves were designed to get the money into the economy as quickly as possible. However, both meant that states which already had spent most of their 1975 allocation and which had the necessary state funds for matching purposes would benefit the most from the freeing of the funds.

Those states also happened to have in general less unemployment.

Thus, Kansas, with a 4.1 per cent unemployment rate in January, has collected $27.2 million in new funds while Michigan, whose unemployment rate of 13.9 per cent topped the nation in January, has collected no new money.

Kansas has been told by the Highway Administration that, because of impoundment, it could spend only $58.5 million of its allotment for fiscal 1975. It had spent about $51 million before President Ford released the impounded funds.

Once Ford's announcement had been made, Kansas began submitting new highway projects for funding. As of March 31, the state had been given $85.7 million in funding — $27.2 million of that in previously impounded funds.

In contrast, Michigan had spent $123.4 million of the $152.4 million it had available in unimpounded funds.

Iowa, which had the second lowest unemployment rate in January at 5.1 per cent, has collected $17.9 million in formerly impounded funds.

Nebraska, with a 5.8 per cent unemployment rate, has collected $51.9 million in new funds while Tennessee, with a 6.5 per cent unemployment rate, has collected $21.9 million.

The biggest single bundle of new funds has gone to Hawaii — $58.1 million. It had a 7.2 per cent unemployment rate in January.

Although only 16 states had managed to use the new funds in the first six weeks, the Federal Highway Administration said it expected numerous other states to dip into the new money in coming weeks.

Education Cost Hikes Vary From 8 To 12%

The costs of attending college will go up almost 12% at public four-year institutions next fall and more than 8% at private institutions, according to a survey of 2,400 schools reported in "The Chronicle of Higher Education."

Total costs will go up an average of 8% for students who live on campus and 6% for those who commute from home, the report said. Total costs will average $3,594 for students living on campus, and $3,186 for commuters.

The survey was conducted by the College Scholarship Service of the College Entrance Examination Board.

By next fall, total costs for students living on campus at public four-year institutions will have risen 50.3% since 1971, up from $1,783 to $2,697 in 1975-76. At private four-year colleges, total costs will have risen 47.4% for students who live on campus, up from $2,974 in 1970-71 to $4,391 in 1975-76.

The biggest increase of all will have been in costs for commuting students at private two-year institutions. They have risen 86.5%, from $1,834 in 1970-71 to $3,421 in 1975-76.

The largest one-year increase in total costs will take place at public institutions, where both commuters and students living on campus will face increases of almost 12% this fall, the survey found.

However, the biggest increase in tuition and fees alone will occur at private four-year schools, up 8% from 1974-75.

The service divided the total costs of going to college into five parts: Tuition and fees, transportation, personal costs, room and board, and books and supplies. Of the five, tuition and fees will vary the most, from an average of $301 at two-year public institutions to $2,240 at private, four-year schools.

The other four parts will vary less than $100 each among the different types of colleges and universities.

Special Education Bills Report To Be Presented

The State Board of Education will hear a report Friday on LB403 and other legislation related to special education programs for handicapped children in Nebraska.

The board will begin with a work session at 8 a.m., to discuss LB403 rules and regulations, a management information systems study, other legislation, and to review public agenda items for the 10:30 a.m. official meeting.

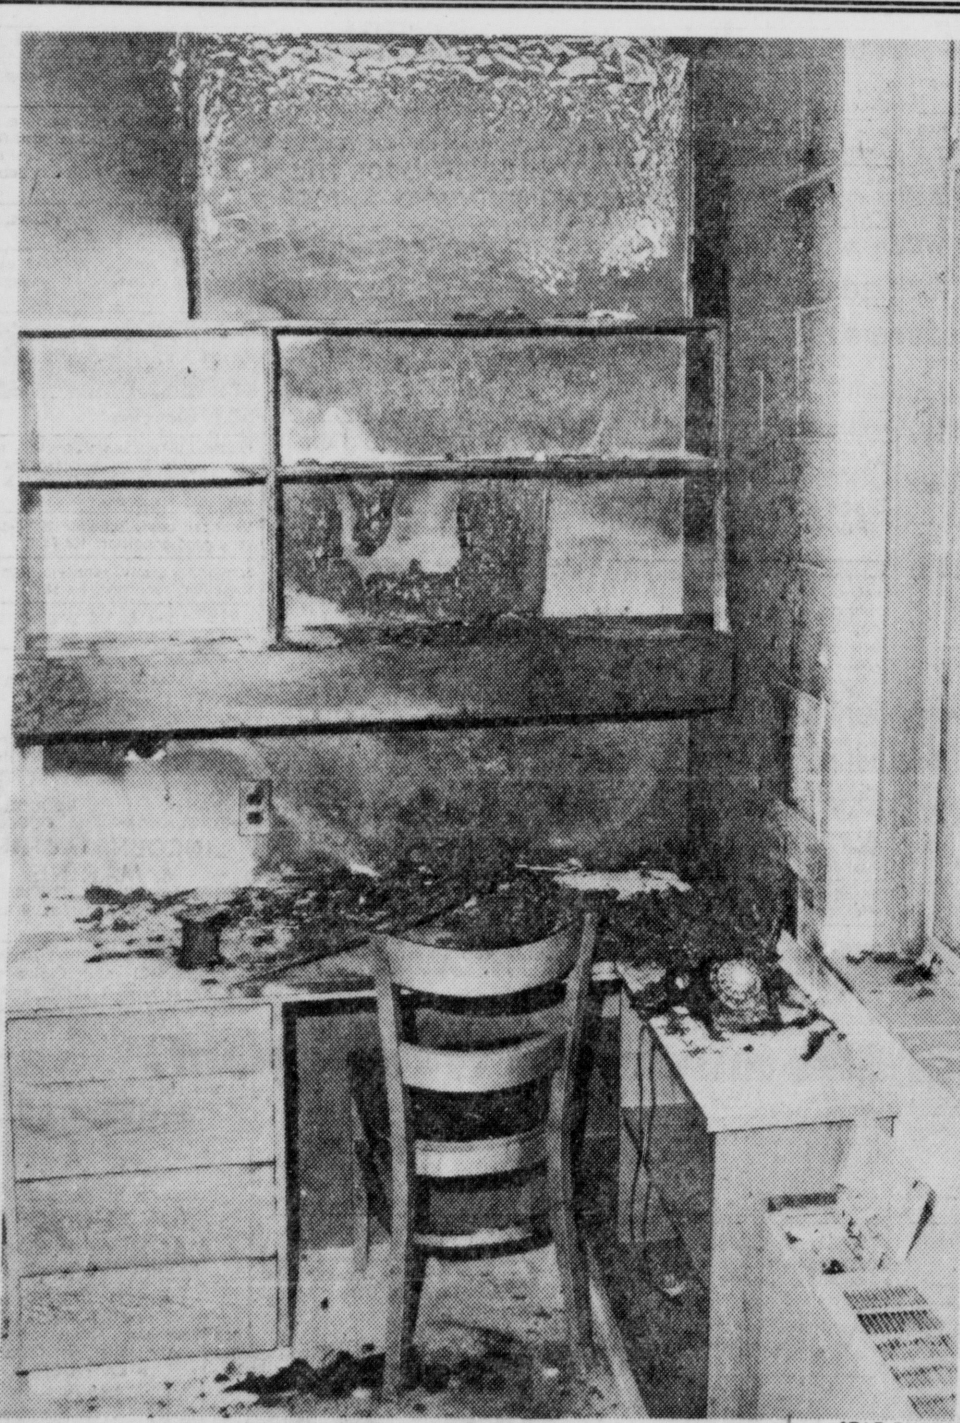

Both sessions will be at the Nebraska School for the Deaf, 3223 N. 45th in Omaha.

Formal agenda items include approval to set hearings May 9 for the state plan on school approval and for teacher standards of competent professional performance.

Preliminary plans for the Diagnostic Resource Center at Cozad will be submitted for review and approval and go-ahead will be sought for an "exemplary project" with the Youth Development Center at Kearney.

Other items for board approval include a research dissemination program proposal to the National Institute of Education, and a $28,286 agreement for television and related production services for 14 programs in "Survival Economics."

Board members will hear reports on procedures involved in licensing private vocational schools, Colorado audit exceptions in vocational rehabilitation that relate to Nebraska, and a progress report on the State Department of Education building lease.

TOP FLOOR ROOM . . . damaged by NU dormitory fire.

Fire Hits Dorm Room

An estimated 250 residents of the 10-story University of Nebraska Smith Hall Dormitory were evacuated Sunday when a fire broke out on the top floor of the structure.

No injuries were reported, and Lincoln firemen extinguished the blaze without incident. The occupant of the room, Teresa Hesh, 18, a freshman from rural Crete, was home for the weekend, authorities said.

Deputy State Fire Marshal Don Rixtein theorized an electrical malfunction in a clock radio in the room triggered the fire. He said the room was locked when the fire was discovered by students on the floor at 7:21 a.m.

The entire room sustained heavy smoke damage, while a desk, shelves and drapes were damaged by fire.

Rixtein said matches and other combustibles were stored near the radio.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Monday

I love it when you write about your friends of astrology. How about more of them? — Doris Hansen, Los Angeles

TAURUS (April 21-April 19) Someone is "pulling your coat" trying to tell you something. A secret operation is under way — and some persons would like to see that you are a part of it. Key now is to be discreet, quiet without need to voice that is still and deep. Yes, you will understand.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Friendship might become a romance. The stakes are higher and the game is for keeps. Know it and conduct yourself accordingly. Capricorn-Cancer persons are in picture. Say "yes" to added responsibility.

SCORPIO (Oct 23-Nov 21) You find that more young persons are eager to share their views. Key is to be full play to curiosity. Aquarius-Taurus exchange views. Deal with active, alive people especially Gemini and Virgo.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Friendship might become a romance. The stakes are higher and the game is for keeps. Know it and conduct yourself accordingly. Capricorn-Cancer persons are in picture. Say "yes" to added responsibility.

SCORPIO (Oct 23-Nov 21) You find that more young persons are eager to share their views. Key is to be full play to curiosity. Aquarius-Taurus exchange views. Deal with active, alive people especially Gemini and Virgo.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 4 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 4, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Monday

"I love it when you write about your friends of astrology. How about more of them?" - Doris Halsey, Los Angeles, Calif. Response: Here are a few exciting, creative "friends" of astrology: Marlene Dietrich, Capricorn; Phyllis Diller, Cancer; Kim Novak, Aquarius; Lawrence Durrell, Pisces; Angie Dickinson, Libra; and Della Reese, Cancer. Do you belong with this company?

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Study Virgo message. Be frank, on the square, specific. Give real meanings to your words. Many observe, rate your actions. You have more friends than might be apparent. You have a private, roofing section. "Don't disappoint them!"

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Someone is "pulling your coat." Trying to tell you something. A secret operation is under way - and some persons would like to see that you are a part of it. Key now is to be discreet, quiet within and to heed voice that is still and deep. Yes, you will understand!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Spotlight is on how you respond to pressure, orders, objectives and objections. Plainly, you are given an opportunity. If you retreat to shell of past, you lose. If you accept challenge in creative manner, you win. The choice is your own!

CANCER (June 21-July 21): Accent now is on long-distance, language, special studies, and communications. Stress creativity, independence, new contacts, fresh starts. Leo, Aquarius, figure prominently. You receive letter, long delay, which clarifies recent happenings.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Concern with what is apparently out-of-reach becomes evident. Dilemma is that the elusive is in your own back yard - yes, acres of diamonds. Pull off layers - get to bottom, to heart of matters - and, yes, get costs and find out who is setting "the price."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Check legal loopholes. Be positive that policies are in effect. Take nothing for granted. Accountant or attorney may be suffering personal emotional problems. Be sure you are not tabbed to pay the bill, intentionally or otherwise. You'll comprehend!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You find that more young persons are eager to share, hear your views. Key is to give full play to curiosity. Ask questions, exchange views. Deal with active, "alive" people, especially Gemini and Virgo.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Home life, basic happiness, the "things that count." The people who care are all spotlighted. You face key issues. Most important, you do see yourself. Taurus, Scorpio and Libra persons figure in important ways.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent is on neighbors, relatives, ideas which are sparked but not quite aflame. You need to get behind the scenes. You require advice of clandestine nature. Means it is time to deal with facts of life in cheerful, receptive manner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) What you spend, ability to obtain "good buys," sense of sensing a bargain, these occupy spotlight. You get down to nitty-gritty and it might cost you. Means facing issues is not without a price. However, it will be worth it!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You finally discover that a new world awaits you. You go through process of rejuvenation. You let go of misconceptions and grasp new, challenging concepts. One who guided you says a nostalgic "goodbye." Stop brooding. You'll do all right!

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are introspective, spiritual, creative. You also are a fighter for justice. You move or make domestic adjustment this year - February and November are your important months of 1975. Pisces, Virgo persons play significant roles in your life. You are regarded as genius material by many. You are sensitive, temperamental and very talented.

(Learn "The Truth About Astrology" Send birthdate (for our survey) and 75 cents to Omarr Booklet, The Lincoln Star, P.O. Box 1111, Los Angeles, Calif. 90033. You'll open door to fascinating study and self-revelation!)
